How Solid Is the South? So the Elephant Died. Mohammed Won't Come. Exhibiting the Dungeons.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE hitherto "Solid South" worries Democrats, and the "solid rock-bound Republican" state of Pennsylvania worries the Republicans.

A surprising poll taken in Texas, nominally 4 to 1 Democratic, shows Hoover and Smith running even in a straw vote.

IN North Carolina the campaign is degenerating into an open religious fight. One Democratic manager finds this feature of the campaign, the opposition to Gov. Smith because he is a Catholic, "most difficult to deal with."

It ought to be dealt with adequately by asking those conducting a religious political fight to read in the Constitution of the United States, that part referring to religion.

SAN NIRA, Burmese Christian, took a sacred white elephant on show to London. That is profanation, as bad as if you took the Grand Llama of Tibet and made him turn wheat cakes in a restaurant window.

The sacred white elephant returned to Burma, died of chagrin and humiliation, according to his worshipers.

On the same day San Nira was murdered with pickax and sledgehammer by his roommate, Said Ali, also a mahout.

The Burmese will rejoice in this "proof" that their religion is powerful.

Nobody will tell them that their sacred elephant was white only because it lacked pigment. It's name, by the way, was Pa Wa.

THE Bible says you mustn't make any graven image of the Deity.

The Koran, said to have been written for Mohammed by an intelligent, educated Jew and made up of various religions, went a step farther. It says you mustn't make a graven image of anybody.

Kemal Pasha, disregarding Mohammed and Allah, erects in Constantinople a monument to honor republican rule in Turkey. The figure of Kemal himself stands out in a bronze group.

SOME Turks will expect Mohammed to ride down on his white horse, Al Borak, and destroy that monument. When the Turks took Constantinople, Christians gathered before the great Church of St. Sofia, believing that angels would destroy the Turks at the last moment.

They didn't appear and St. Sofia is still a Mohammedan mosque. Mohammed on Al Borak won't appear either.

THE Czar's dungeons where prisoners died slowly in cells below the level of the River Neva, and the execution rooms where political prisoners were beaten to death with the knout, are opened to the public by Russia's new government as an interesting revelation of czardom.

This should persuade Russians not to bring the czars back, however they may feel about Bolshevism.

YESTERDAY in many churches, service was devoted to thanks for today's signing of the peace treaty in Paris.

It might have been a good idea to wait and see what the peace treaty really means before praying too hard.

Europe thinks it means that the United States, in spite of itself, will be, from now on, tied up with the League of Nations. If it does mean that, the Senate should defeat it.

IN MINNESOTA, prohibition officials threaten to padlock wet homes.

Quite a surprise for the Minnesota ploughman, homeward plodding his weary way, or children from the public schools to find the front and back door padlocked, and be compelled to sleep in the garage.

One way to kill a thing is to make it ridiculous.

SEVEN thousand miles happens to be the distance in a straight line across the Pacific Ocean. Planes able to make that trip ought to interest us.

But we haven't any air ministry. Our government doesn't yet realize that airplanes really exist. This nation, richest in the world, depends on private individuals to develop the airplane.

We may pay for that some day and be compelled to call on British airplanes to help us, as we had to call on British ships to help us in the big war.

What we are saving now on airplanes may cost a thousand dollars for one some one day.

WHATEVER men may think of Russia's government they must admit that it is progressive. It will substitute the metric system, which can be understood by any child of 10, abolishing old weights and measures.

This country needs the metric system, but lacks intelligence or will to adopt it.

HAWAII'S census shows that Japanese no longer dominate the foreign population. There are now more Filipinos, 51,870 of them, against 51,348 Japanese.

Whites are few in number, but collect most of the real money.

SENATORS GET RECORDS

With the opening today of the Vare-Wilson election fraud hearing in the Courthouse, the McGovern audit of the county's financial status was slated for a revival. Controller Robert G. THE QUESTION-ANSWER GAME

How the Allegheny Republicans spent their campaign funds was related when Samuel J. Topley (above) was quizzed by Senator Waterman (right), chairman of the Senate sub-committee. Topley, now clerk of courts, was treasurer of the Republican county campaign when Senator-elect Vare defeated the Democratic nominee, William B. Wilson, whose charges of fraud are now being heard.

BACK YARD BABES' GRAVE

MONESSEN, Pa., Aug. 27.—Police today dug up the bodies of twin babies in the backyard of the home of Don Hatkly, 618 McMahon avenue. One of the babes, a girl, had been buried when she was alive. The other, a boy, had possibly died before burial.

John Hlatky, 8, led the police to the spot. He had been told by his father, he said, that the later had buried chickens there.

Mrs. Anna Hlatsky, mother of five children, is in the Memorial Hospital, Monongahela, under police guard. After at first denying that the children had been born to her last week, she admitted to authorities today that they were hers, and that they were interred by her daughter, Margaret, 14, at her instructions.

The father and son John are in the state police barracks at Greensburg being grilled. The bodies are being held for an inquest late today.

HIRED GUNMAN KILLED DAPPER, NEW THEORY

The voluntary visit of the father of Dr. Harry R. Dapper, murdered Carrick physician, to the district attorney's office, the advancement of the theory that a hired Chicago gunman is the slayer, and the reported discovery of a trail to the missing death car in Greene county were the outstanding developments today as the hunt for the slayer goes on.

"I am ready at any time to go with the county detectives any place or do anything I can that will help solve this murder," declared Henry A. Dapper as he left the office of Acting District Attorney Roy T. Clunk.

Dapper denied that he had ever received a threatening letter. "I never got one," said he, "and if my boy had received one, he would have come to me with it."

Dapper conferred with Clunk about some details of the crime which the former thought had not been gone into thoroughly enough at the previous conference Saturday.

Dapper told detectives that two men had been seen prowling around his son's garage several nights before the murder, and that a stranger had inquired at a home across the street from the physician's office as to the latter's address, the day before the young doctor was shot down by a man who lured him by a "mercy call."

NEW CLUE

A squad of detectives was dispatched to the office of Justice of the Peace R. L. Elwood, of Monongahela, today after the latter had telephoned to detective headquarters that a man had seen a green car with a red stripe of the exact description of the death car in Greene county Saturday.

The man reported to have seen the car was sent for by Justice Elwood and he was to tell details to the sleuths.

Another South Hills physician was asked to go on a "call of mercy" at an early hour this morning by a "stranger" whose description tallies in some respect with that of the slayer of Dr. Dapper. Dr. Daniel L. Rectenwald, of 747 Warrington avenue, upon whom the visitor called, notified police and a search was started immediately.

The stranger roughly dressed, called at the physician's office shortly after 2 o'clock. He pleaded with the doctor to go with him to

VOTE HERE NEAR TIE

Gains made by Hoover in the straw vote canvass conducted in Pennsylvania by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph practically place him even with Smith in the presidential race.

Ballots from the country districts have almost wiped out the lead which the Democratic candidate was given in his city support at the beginning of the tabulation of the postal card straw ballots.

HOOVER OVERTAKES SMITH

Hoover has gained steadily since the ballots were circulated among the rural voters. Returns from the residential suburban districts cut down Smith's lead in the cities, but a further crimp was put in the Democratic candidate's big margin by the up-state voters.

In the canvass return postal cards are going out to 10 per cent of the list of registered voters in the various counties, and if they run true to form, Hoover will fatten his totals by further returns from the rural districts.

PHILA. RETURNS COMING

On the other hand, the first report from thousands of postal cards mailed to Philadelphia voters will come in within a few days and if the Quaker City shows anything like Pittsburgh's leanings there will be a proportionate increase in the Smith column.

These returns will be watched with interest as well the figures from the mountain counties, the hard coal region and the agricultural sections in Southeastern Pennsylvania.

County detectives sought to pick up the trail of a hired Chicago gunman in the Dapper murder today after Jennie Adams (above), 15, of 3106 Chartiers avenue, told of having seen a car bearing license 22-037, identical with the death car number, last week in Jerseyville, Ill., where she was visiting relatives.

PROBE 1926 BALLOT PRINTING

The method in which the ballots for the 1926 election were printed and distributed is being aired before the Senate sub-committee investigating the Vare-Wilson contest, which opened hearings today in Room 310, Courthouse.

This phase came to the fore when attorneys for William B. Wilson, who is contesting the election of William S. Vare, called William J. Golder, of the Pittsburgh Printing Company, to the stand as their third witness.

Golder, after producing copies of his company's bid and contract, said he did not know to whom the ballots were delivered or the name of the representative of the County Commissioners who approved the proofs.

FOUR OTHER "PUZZLES"

The investigation of the ballots was one of four developments at the opening sessions of the hearings here. The others were:

The presentation by Controller Robert G. Woodside of voluminous documents of testimony and bales of canceled vouchers that were gathered as evidence during former Controller Charles C. McGovern's probe of the county's fiscal affairs.

The grilling of Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, who was treasurer of the Republican county committee in 1926, by Rowland B. Mahany, counsel for Wilson, on the expenditure of $50,000 for 9,870 watchers and messengers on election day of that year.

Inquiries directed at Topley and Harry O. Perry, who was financial secretary at the Republican headquarters, concerning numerous expenditures ranging from $85 to $200 for "dissemination of information." Two of those named as receiving money for such "dissemination"

Split, Bucs' Aim

CINCINNATI, Aug. 27.—The Pirates will bat behind either Fred Fussell or Carmen Hill as they battle the Reds in the second game of the series here today. The odds favor Hill getting the assignment, though Manager Donie Bush refused to state definitely this morning who he would select Adolph Luque, the veteran Cuban, will toss 'em for the Reds, who have added to their hold on fourth place by taking the fifth-place Pirates over yesterday, 4 to 3.

Red Lucas turned in another triumph over the Pirates in the Sunday encounter, continuing to exercise his mastery over the Bucs by blanking them for eight innings.

Adam Comorosky, outfielder, who was released to the Indianapolis club of the American Association earlier in the season, has been recalled and will report to Manager Bush today. He may be used in this afternoon's clash.

Jiggs Contest Recipes Swamp Prize Judges

A deluge of recipes for corned beef and cabbage—Jiggs' favorite dish — has swamped the national headquarters so badly in the contest conducted by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in conjunction with other papers that it will not be possible to pick a winner until after September 1.

The amazing number of contributions will keep the judges and their assistants busy at least two weeks more, they announce. Sun-Telegraph readers will be informed as to the winners as soon as possible thereafter.

KELLOGG'S TREATY SEALED

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT,
International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Through the signing of a multilateral treaty renouncing military force as an instrument of national policy, 15 nations, representing two-thirds of the world's fighting power, agreed today never again to go to war. The rest of the world was invited to take the same pledge.

The scene of this historic event was the Salles des Horloges in the French foreign office on the Quai D'Orsay, where the League of Nations was born under the sponsorship of Woodrow Wilson, then President of the United States.

The participants in the ceremony composed the most distinguished group of plenipotentiaries since the signing of the Versailles peace treaty.

The solemnity of the occasion was reflected in the attitude of the signatories themselves and the few hundred fortunate persons who were able to gain admittance to the great Hall of Clocks to witness the consummation of what is regarded in Europe as the most powerful and far-reaching step yet taken to abolish war and insure universal peace.

Frank B. Kellogg, American Secretary of State, who carried on negotiations for the treaty, was one of the outstanding figures at the conference. Next to him stood Aristide Briand, French foreign

What Signers Of Peace Pact Agree to Do

The full text of the multilateral treaty renouncing war, signed in Paris today by 15 nations, follows:

"Deeply sensible of their solemn duty to promote the welfare of mankind;

"Persuaded that the time has come when a frank renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy should be made to the end that the peaceful and friendly relations now existing between their peoples may be perpetuated:

"Convinced that all changes in their relations with one another should be sought only by pacific means and be the result of a peaceful and orderly process, and that any signatory power which shall hereafter seek to promote its national interests by resort to war should be denied the benefits furnished by this treaty;

"Hopeful that, encouraged by their example, all the other nations of the world will join in this humane endeavor and by adhering to the present treaty as soon as it comes into force, bring their peoples within scope of its beneficent provisions, thus uniting civilized nations of the world in a common renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy;

"Have decided to conclude a treaty and for that purpose have appointed plenipotentiaries who have agreed upon the following articles:

"Article One—The high contracting parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with each other.

"Article Two—The high contracting parties agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means.

"Article Three—The present treaty shall be ratified by the high contracting parties named in the preamble in accordance with the respective constitutional requirements, and shall take effect as between them as soon as all their several instruments of ratification shall have been deposited in Washington."

VICE CRUSADER SHOT AT, HOME FIRED

AKRON, O., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—An intensive roundup of all known members of Akron's underworld was under way today because of the second attempt in three days on the life of Kyle Ross, vice crusading councilman, who engaged in a gun duel with gangsters after his home had been set afire last night.

Ross, recently appointed by the City Council to investigate crime conditions, was fired on as he stood in the kitchen door of his home after being awakened by his wife, who had heard an intruder coming up the basement stairs. The bullet shattered one of the door panels.

The councilman switched on flood lights installed in his back yard when his life first was threatened, ran outside and exchanged shots with his assailant. A neighbor, Ed Hardesty, awakened by the firing, seized a gun and shot from his bedroom window at a second man who had appeared near the Ross home. Both attackers then fled. None of the bullets took effect.

HOME SET AFIRE

Meantime, the basement of the Ross home had become a mass of flames. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze and found that all of the cellar walls had been sprayed with gasoline.

A large pile of papers, wood and coal also had been heaped up in the coal room and set afire.

EXPLOSION PLOT BARED

Police revealed yesterday that on Friday night an attempt was made to blow up Ross' home. The incident had been kept secret that a speedier investigation might be made. Officers said his home had been filled with natural gas and the electric current switched off, evidently in the idea that the Councilman, finding his home dark would light matches. The plot failed, however, when a friend accompanying Ross home grabbed his arm just as he was about to light a match and called his attention to the odor of the gas.

Detectives have had the house under surveillance since.

Friends of Ross said they believed the attempts on his life resulted from the information obtained by the Councilman in his investigation. Ross has charged that gambling, racketeering, graft and bootlegging are rampant here.

Vets of Three Wars "Recover" -:- After Big Kennywood Reunion -:- As Guests of Sun-Telegraph

TALES OF TWO WARS

Veterans of three wars were "recovering" today from the busy and interesting day they spent Saturday having "a whopper of a time." They were all guests of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. You can see for yourself that Lieut. Isaac M. Bliss, Civil War veteran, had a fine time telling stories of another war, and William H. Page, 1407 Laurel street, and J. H. Rowan, Coraopolis, World War veterans, were more than glad to listen.

THE CASUALTY LIST

TOO MANY CRULLERS

There was everything for everybody at this big reunion at Kennywood Park. And the camera man, realizing all this, would have his little joke. He lined up a few doughboys outside the Red Cross emergency tent and urged them to simulate stomach sickness—induced, of course, by eating too much of the good things. The actors: Miss Edna Little, Ed Weber, J. C. Jones, J. C. McClosky, John W. Henck. All will recover, as they say.

"AS GOOD AS EVER"

THE "SALLY" GIRLS

"We liked 'em in France and they're just as good here," chorused this quartet as they disposed of a plenteous supply of doughnuts and coffee supplied by the ever-serving "Sally" girls—officially known as Salvation Army lassies. The "Sallies" strengthened their reputation for service and generosity at the big reunion, a statement attested to by Eugene Oats, Ray Shaltenbrand, Frank Kopic and Joseph P. Driscoe (above).

And (below) these three awed youngsters look on, puzzled. The sisters are Leonore, Maxine and Betty Rowan, of Coraopolis, daughters of a World War veteran.

5 DEAD, 20 MISSING IN FLOOD

International News Service.

ELLENVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Floods resulting from a cloudburst in Ulster and Sullivan counties were today believed to have taken a toll of at least five lives.

Property damage is tremendous. Many bridges have been washed away and 20 persons were reported missing. Communication with many of the communities in the affected area has been disrupted and it is feared the flood toll may be greater.

DROWNED IN AUTO

Charles Lapery, 50, of Paterson, N. J., was drowned when he attempted to escape from his automobile when it was engulfed by the swirling waters on a road near here, according to Chief of Police Ross.

Lapery was accompanied by an unnamed companion who reached higher ground in safety. Lapery's body was recovered early today.

At Montella, N. Y., according to the Ellenville police, a man named Blatt was drowned after carrying his crippled wife to safety. The bungalow of the drowned man was in the direct path of the racing current.

Three persons were reported drowned near Accord when their automobile was overturned by the swollen waters of a creek near the road upon which they were traveling. According to reports, a bridge over the creek was washed out and the driver attempted to ford the small stream but miscalculated its depth and velocity. All three were trapped in the car.

MANY PERSONS RECUED

Thrirty-five boys stranded on an island in Roundout creek were rescued early today. They are members of the Junior Naval Reserve in the care of a man named Zinner.

The Roundout Creek, according to nearby residents, is about 20 feet beyond its depth. The boys were huddled together part of the island. Until early this morning attempts to reach the island were futile because of the velocity of the stream and the darkness.

Between 400 and 500 guests of the Napanoch Country Club were rescued by boats when the Roundout Creek surrounded the club's buildings.

were Alderman Sol S. Goldstein, of the Fourteenth Ward, who was given $120, according to the testimony, and Chief Clerk William M. Ziefel, of the County Commissioners' office, who was secretary of the county committee.

"$1,000—AND WHY?"

The item in which the Wilson attorneys seemed by their repeated questions to be most interested was the payment of $1,000 for "dissemination of information" to Lawrence Alvino, said to be chairman of the Italian Voters' League of Western Pennsylvania.

Both Topley and Perry disavowed any knowledge of what the information was or where it was disseminated, saying that they paid the amounts on orders given by those in charge. The total expenditure by the Republican county committee, Topley said, was $120,479, with receipts totaling $121,495.

Question after question was fired by Mahany at Topley.

"Isn't it a fact?" asked Mahany, "that each messenger and watcher was given his certificate after he had voted on election day?"

"I can't answer that," said Topley, "but I feel that it is not a fact."

NO LIST FILED

Topley explained that it was his duty as treasurer to pay the certificates after they had been properly indorsed. Asked if a list of the watchers and messengers had been filed with any authority, Topley said he knew of no such list.

"The law does not require that the list be filed," said Charles B. Prichard, who is representing Vare.

Mahany questioned Topley as to how the list of watchers was made up, and was informed that they were compiled by Councilman James F. Malone, who was in charge of the headquarters; William H. Zeifel, secretary to the county committee, and Joseph G. Armstrong, who was county chairman.

Senator Waterman suggested to Mahany that he call those responsible for making up the list in order to secure that information.

"How many women were watchers and messengers?" Mahany asked Topley.

"I can't answer exactly," said Topley, "but I believe there were the same number as the men." Topley testified that each watcher and messenger received $5, being paid during the week following the election.

When he paid these watchers he was aided by Harry Perry, his secretary and other employes whose names he did not recall. There was an average, he said, of four messengers and three watchers to each precinct.

"To whom did Alvino disseminate information?" asked Mahany.

"I don't know," said the witness. "You will have to ask the people who authorized the payment. Most of the payments for the dessimination of information were authorized by Malone and Zeifel."

Others named as receiving money for that purpose were W. J. O'Connor, R. L. Epping, Francis E. Carney, Harvey D. Smith, James Duffy, B. Cohen, T. J. Cloonan, Goldstein and Ziefel.

Just before he was excused from the stand at noon Topley testified that all of the vouchers had been destroyed, the law permitting that, he said, 60 days after the election.

Topley was followed on the stand by Perry, who disclaimed knowledge of the workings of the Republican headquarters save as related to his own work as financial secretary. He was asked concerning the use to which Ziefel put $200 paid for "dissemination of information," answering that he did not know. Questioned concerning the publicity bureau at the headquarters he named James B. Sanson, Charles Howell and John B. Wilson as among those working there.

"Was there any one whose business it was to know what was going on in the headquarters?" Mahany asked. "Do you know of any one who can throw light on the information we want to obtain for the United States Senate?"

Perry suggested either Malone or Ziefel, adding that he did not know of any information that would aid the investigation. He was followed to the stand by Golder, who was questioned by John M. Henry, another Wilson attorney.

Wilson was present at the hearings today with his attorneys, Mahany, Henry and A. E. Hirshman and David Wallenstein, of Philadelphia. Vare, who is absent because of illness, was represented by Prichard. Edward A. Kelly and Edward H. Wells, of Philadelphia. Vare's secretary, William R. Douglas, also was present. Scores of politicians and officials, including County Commissioners Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and McGovern, were on hand when the session opened.

15 NATIONS IN NO-WAR PACT

minister, who had originally proposed an anti-war treaty.

BRIAND LAUDS KELLOGG

When the conference was called to order a few moments after 3 o'clock, Foreign Minister Briand began his speech.

"Mr. Kellogg," said the French official, "can look back with a feeling of pride upon the progress made in such a short time since that day when we both began to examine the means of carrying out this far-reaching diplomatic undertaking. Nobody has been better qualified than he is to play the prominent part which was his due."

Inside the Salle des Horloges, the signatories took their places around a large horseshoe-shaped table covered with red baize. M. Briand and Mr. Kellogg had places at the top and center of the table. Chief interest centered upon these two men who had inaugurated and carried out the plan for a world treaty renouncing war.

It was a historic moment as the delegates faced these two statesmen who had labored ceaselessly for 15 months to bring about this peace pact.

Foreign Minister Briand formally called the brilliant assemblage to order and welcomed the plenipotentiaries on behalf of the government of France. He described briefly the efforts that had gone into the making of the treaty about to be signed and then called for the reading of the document itself.

Both the English and French texts were read, and although the statesmen gathered about the big red horseshoe knew each word and phrase as well as they knew their own names, they leaned forward to catch every one of the 800 odd words.

First were recited the names of the monarchs or presidents of the 15 nations adhering to the treaty and then began the actual text.

Then followed the provisions for adherence of 45 other nations, including Soviet Russia, and for notification to all the signatories when such adherences take place.

USE HISTORIC PEN

When the reading was finished Foreign Minister Briand arose, took from the table the pen used 150 years ago in the signing of the first treaty of friendship between France and the United States, and handed it to Gustav Stresemann, German foreign secretary, and the first German foreign secretary to visit Paris in more than half a century. Under the French spelling, "Allemagne" was the first on the list of nations represented, and Germany had the honor of affixing the first signature.

After Dr. Stresemann finished, Secretary of State Kellogg signed for the United States, and then the other signatures were affixed in the following order:

BELGIUM—Paul Hymans, Foreign Minister.

FRANCE—Aristide Briand, Foreign Minister.

GREAT BRITAIN—Lord Cushenden (representing the Foreign Secretary, Sir Austen Chamberlain, who also signed on behalf of North Ireland and India.

CANADA—Mackenzie King, Prime Minister.

AUSTRALIA—Senator McLaughlan, representing the Australian Prime Minister.

NEW ZEALAND—Sir C. J. Parr.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—J. S. Smit.

IRISH FREE STATE—William T. Cosgrave, President of the Free State Executive Council.

ITALY—Count Mazoni, Italian Ambassador to France.

JAPAN—Count Uchida, former Japanese Premier.

POLAND—August Saleski, Polish Minister to France.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA—Edouard Benes, Foreign Minister.

PLANE, SIX FEARED LOST

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—Six persons were missing today, together with the monoplane in which they left Victoria Saturday morning for Seattle.

Patches of oil seen in Puget Sound by searchers in other planes, and two men's hats discovered floating in the sound, were believed by many to indicate that the tri-motored all-metal plane had flown into the water in a fog and gone under with all on board.

Hope was kept alive, however, by unverified reports that fishermen had seen a plane off the west coast beach of Vancouver Island, on which Harold Walker, one of the missing plane's pilots, had told his wife he would try to land if he ever got in difficulty in the neighborhood.

The 10-passenger machine was last seen 20 minutes after taking off for Seattle on its regular schedule. A lighthouse keeper said it was then flying low and its motors "apparently faltering."

Weather Conditions.

High pressure, with its crest over New England, covers the country east of the Mississippi River this morning, and the skies are clear except over the Middle Atlantic states and New England. There were generous rains over the Atlantic Coast states during yesterday and last night due to a slight disturbance that moved over that section from the South.

A disturbance, central this morning over South Dakota, is moving eastward from the far West. It produced showers and thunderstorms over the Rocky Mountain states and the Northern and Central plain states. The rains were heavy in Northern Minnesota; 3.10 inches at Moorhead, Minn. The temperatures are near the seasonal normal.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.8 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.2; Dam No. 6, 7.6 feet. The dams are up.

HIRED GUNMAN KILLED DAPPER IS NEW THEORY

his wife who was "dangerously ill." When questioned about the location of his home he was unable to describe it and he also refused to give his name. Dr. Rectenwald told him to go to the South Side Hospital for aid and as soon as the visitor had left the police were informed.

STRANGER DISAPPEARS

A squad of men was dispatched to the South Side and St. Joseph's hospitals but there was no calls there for physicians. City detectives also were called and they searched the South Side and Mt. Washington districts throughout the early morning hours without learning anything more regarding the stranger.

The description given by Dr. Rectenwald, police say, is similar to that obtained of the slayer of the Carrick physician, who was shot down in the Lebanon Church road, Mifflin township, Monday night.

GUNMAN SOUGHT

County detectives today began a search for a Chicago gunman as the slayer of Dr. Dapper, as the result of a clue from a 13-year-old girl, Jennie Adams, 3106 Chartiers avenue, who returned Thursday from a visit to her uncle in Jerseyville, Ill. She is positive the murder car passed through that town last Thursday.

The Adams girl said she had been watching for autos bearing Pennsylvania licenses and four passed through Jerseyville, the last bearing license No. 22-037. The driver was alone, and was headed toward Springfield or Chicago, driving from the direction of St. Louis.

Police say it would have been possible for the slayer to make the trip within the time which elapsed after the murder and the time the girl saw the car. The police have also tried to trace a car which stopped on Noblestown road for gas last Monday night.

Jack McCartney, attendant, said the police had given him the license number of a stolen auto and, when a car containing a man and woman and having evidence of having been driven hard, stopped at the station, he paid close attention to the number. The first three figures were "220," but McCartney is not sure of the final two figures.

Detectives say it would have been possible for the slayer to double back, strike the National Pike at Washington and get to Jerseyville.

Acting District Attorney R. T. Clunk today announced that description of the Dapper slayer and automobile are being broadcast, particular attention being paid to Chicago and vicinity.

BELIEVES KILLER HIRED

His belief that the physician was slain by a hired killer was reiterated yesterday by Acting Chief Harry Cochran of the County Detective Bureau. It may take many weeks to round up those interested in the plot to kill the physician and to keep the slayer out of the clutches of the law, Cochran indicated.

The county detectives who were called out on the case immediately after the killing were criticized yesterday by Milton Englert, a brother-in-law of the victim. Englert declared that although Dapper was conscious for several hours at the hospital, no effort was made by the sleuths to question him. Englert talked to the dying physician for some time at the hospital and he said that the victim was conscious until his death. He said he called the attention of the detectives to the importance of questioning the victim but they made no attempt to interview him.

CANDY STORE ROBBED; SOUTH SIDE BOY HELD

Stanley Nathan, 17, of 2125 Sarah street, was ordered held for court at a hearing on a breaking and entry charge today in Morals Court before Magistrate A. D. Brandon. Police say Nathan broke into Tony Zoller's confectionery at 2109 Sarah street and took a revolver, watches and some cash.

Pittsburgh Business Leaders -:- Study River Traffic -:- See Waterway Developments

LET'S DEVELOP OUR RIVER TRAFFIC

PLAN FOR PROGRESS

With the development of Pittsburgh's river traffic in mind, business leaders will make an inspection trip of the waterways on September 6, arranged by C. W. Trust (above), and others of the Shippers' Council, Chamber of Commerce.

THE OHIO RIVER ROUTE

TO SHOW POSSIBILITIES

This scene of a winterworks car ferry passing down the Ohio to the Aliquippa works of Jones & Laughlin with steel loaded on freight cars will be pointed out as indicative of the extensive private facilities individual industries may acquire for river shipments. The inspection also is expected to show what terminal facilities are available and encourage the movement to obtain public docks.

THE OPPORTUNITY IS THERE

AID FROM WASHINGTON

W. M. Councill (above), chairman of the Shippers' Council, points out that Candidates Hoover and Smith having pledged themselves to waterway improvements, Pittsburgh's strategic river system takes on added importance.

-AND WE HAVE THE FACILITIES

THE PROGRAM

The inspection will proceed to Clairton on the Monongahela River; Ambridge on the Ohio, and Aspinwall on the Allegheny River, on the Steamer Julia Belle Swain. Benjamin S. Thomas (above), of the council, will be among the guides.

SUBWAY CRASH DEATH TOLL REACHES 17

Who Killed Dr. Dapper? -:- Find the Car! the Bullet! -:- What Was the Motive?

ONLY EYEWITNESS

IN THE DARK

A week old today, the murder of the Carrick physician, Dr. Harry R. Dapper, was more mysterious than ever. The story of his father, Henry A. Dapper (above), only eyewitness, apparently has failed to furnish a clue.

A CLUELESS TRAGEDY

While the widow of the young Pitt graduate grieves, county detectives are confronted by an unyielding wall as they seek answers to four pertinent questions.

MOTIVE

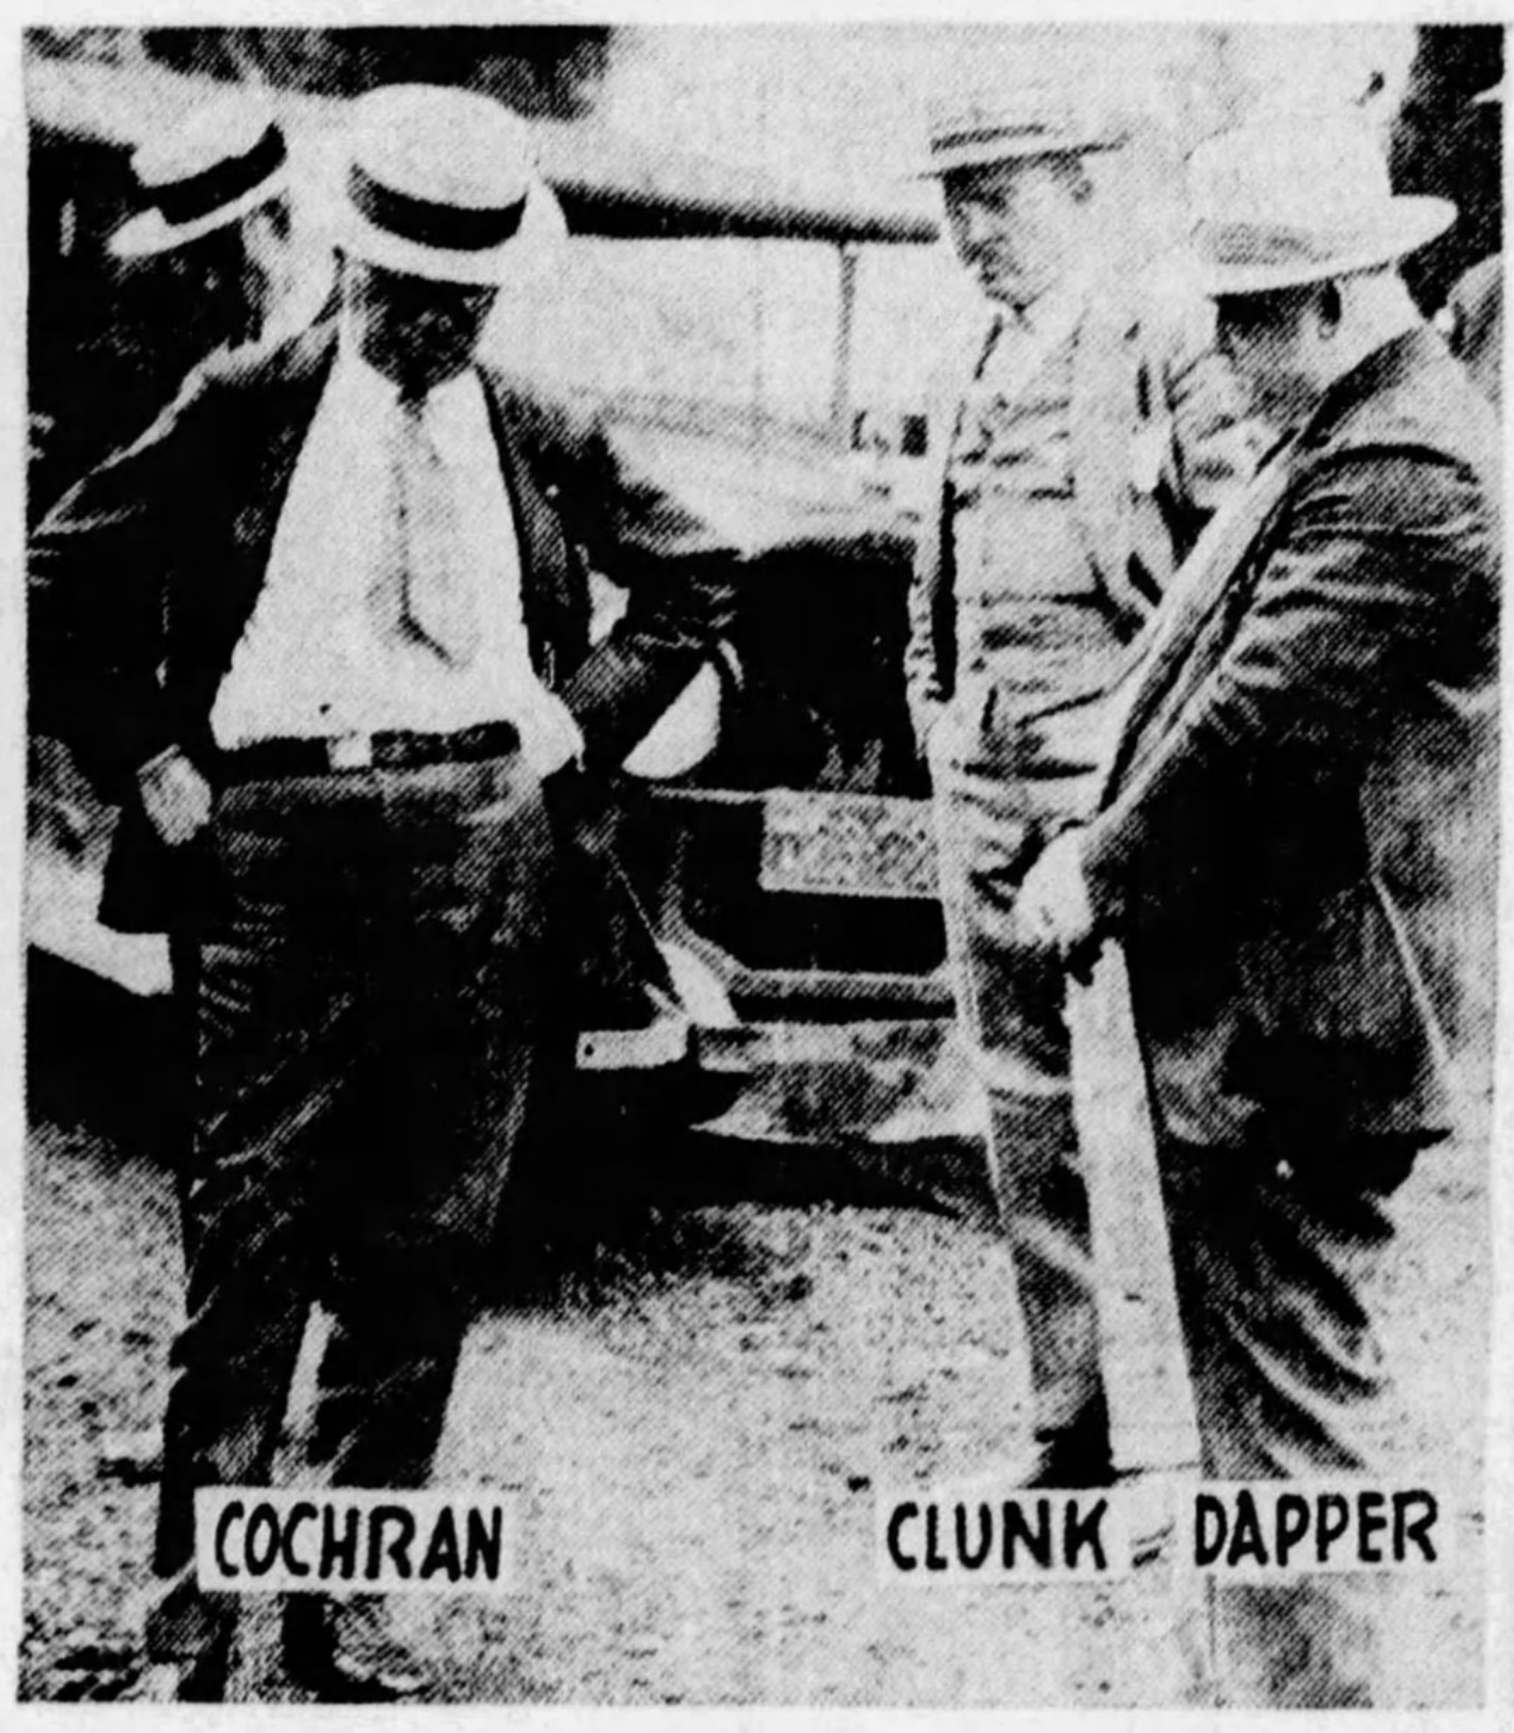
WHO? WHAT? WHERE?

Who is the killer? Where is the doctor's car in which the slayer escaped after shooting the son and beating the father? What became of the bullet which entered the victim's right side, but after penetrating the body, failed to leave a mark on the left side of his clothing? Was the motive robbery or revenge? Did the bullet fall between the medico's clothes to the floor of the car, or was it lost in Lebanon Church road?



A MYSTERIOUS PLEA

The elder Dapper shows Acting Chief of County Detectives Cochran and Acting District Attorney Clunk where the car was stopped and the mysterious stranger committed murder. The killer, Dapper explains, had called at the physician's Carrick office and pleaded with him to attend his "sick wife," miles distant.

WHO KILLED HIM?

A SILENT WEAPON

Puzzled, Dr. Dapper (above), asked his father to accompany him. The man, who proved an assassin, armed with a silenced revolver, sat alongside the doctor in front, the elder Dapper in the rear.

SUBWAY CRASH DEATH TOLL REACHES 17

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—The death of Elizabeth Siebold, 19, of Rockaway, N. Y., in Bellevue Hospital yesterday brought to 17 the death list of the Times Square subway wreck of Friday when a heavily loaded car in a southbound Interborough Rapid Transit express train was derailed at a switch as it was leaving the station.

Of the injured 21 were still in hospitals today, 14 of them reported to be in serious condition.

The bodies of two victims still were unclaimed at the morgue, one, htta of Mrs. Ann Quigley, 40, of Brooklyn, and the other the unidentified body of a young woman.

POLICE GUARD FUNERAL

A detail of police was required to handle the crowd of 5,000 which gathered at the first funeral of wreck victims when services were held for Mrs. Marion Zips, 29, and her 6-year-old son, Herbert, who died together when the subway car tore itself in two against the tube structure.

Although full service was restored 12 hours after the crash which occurred at the peak of the evening rush hour, subway repairmen working in shifts were still engaged in replacing the steel pillars and concrete wall wrecked by the impact of the derailed car.

TRACKMAN ARRESTED.

"Man failure" was given as the cause of the accident by the transit commission. William Baldwin, I. R. T. maintenance man, who had been repairing the switch was held in $10,000 bail on a charge of homicide by negligence.

FELL DEAD IN STREET; ALCOHOLISM BLAMED

Patrick Manning, 50, of 282 Thirty-ninth street, fell dead in Smallman street, near Thirtieth street, late yesterday. At the morgue it was reported that death had been due to acute alcoholism.

DURANT OFFERS $25,000 FOR BEST ANTI-WET PLAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—A prize of $25,000 for "the best and most practicable plan to make the Eighteenth Amendment effective" has been offered by W. C. Durant, motor car magnate and capitalist.

"We are imperiled by the widespread violation of the liquor law embodied in the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, the highest law of the land," a statement issued from Mr. Durant's office today declared.

"Big business leaders who have the largest stake in law observance publicly and privately violate this law and countenance its violation by others. Instead of using their wealth and influence to create public opinion demanding law enforcement, our business men of character and position are the chief support of the master criminal class, the bootlegger.

"It is my belief that the majority of our people do not want the Eighteenth Amendment abandoned. The people want it enforced and obeyed.

"In order to give expression to the soundest thought in the country on the subject, I offer a prize of $25,000 for the best and most practicable plan to make the Eighteenth Amendment effective." The statement said the prize would be awarded by a committee of prominent men and women now being selected. Competitive offerings must be submitted prior to December 1 of this year.

JAIL 5, REFUSE SUNDAY BAIL IN RAID

Revelry in the Hollywood Gardens, a road house, in Lowrie's Run road, Bellevue, ended abruptly when a squad of prohibition agents raided the place shortly before midnight Saturday.

Men and women patrons were reported to have rushed for the exits while the raiders were searching the place. Three pints of beer, two cans of malt and a can of syrup were found in the place. Clarence Brunner, 50, and William Brunner, 29, were arrested.

Joseph Wood, 24, of Emsworth and Melten Asquith, 24, of 5031 Bayard street, also were nabbed when the agents said they found a partly filled bottle of gin on a table at which they were sitting. Searching machines parked outside the roadhouse, the agents arrested Albert Springer, Jr., 25, of 444 Park road, Ambridge. In his car, the officers said, they found a bottle of whisky.

The prisoners spent Sunday in Central Police Station, the agents said, and early this morning were released on $1,000 bail each. The agents refused to accept bail on Sunday.

CAUSE OF FIRE MYSTERY

Cause of the $75,000 fire which early Sunday destroyed the planing mill of the Buckman Lumber Company, Preble avenue, near Island avenue, Woods Run, still was a mystery today. The loss was due to destruction of machinery and cut lumber. Ten fire companies which answered a general alarm fought the flames continuously for six and a half hours.

Sylvester Bogner, a watchman, and his wife, awakened by the dense smoke, had sounded the alarm. The flames started in and were confined to the planing mill. The work of the firemen was highly lauded by company officials.

The planing mill was destroyed by a similar fire two years ago.

4 Robbers, 4 Guns; Return $10 To Victim

Four kind robbers didn't take all John Maxmillian's money when they held up his barbecue stand in Becks Run road, Baldwin township, early today.

One of the four found $70 in the cash register but returned $10 to Maximilian, saying he believed the owner needed a little for himself.

The four had driven up to the stand in a small machine, and ordered sandwiches. Each produced a revolver.

'TALKIE' PLANE FORCED DOWN IN SEA; 11 SAVED

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Tossing about on the choppy waves of the upper bay in the vicinity of the Statue of Liberty, 11 persons aboard a large seaplane yesterday spent more than two hours vainly signalling for help before they were towed to safety from a gathering storm.

The plane, designed and equipped for the showing of talking movies while in the air, was forced down on the bay by a burned-out engine bearing shortly after it had taken off for Atlantic City.

A ferryboat finally recognized its distress signals.

In addition to the crew of three the plane carried Phelps Phelps, member of the New York State Assembly; Fred Roche, public relations director for First National Pictures; T. D. Juste, president of the Atlantic Airways Corporation; a photographer and a group of newspapermen.

Hunger as the result of a long-deferred luncheon was the only ill effect reported by members of the party.

TOWANDA PUBLISHER, D. M. TURNER, 82, DIES

TOWANDA, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—David MacAllaster Turner, 82, one of the best-known publishers in this part of the state, died last night. Mr. Turner was president of the Towanda Printing Company, publishers of the Towanda Daily Review. He was postmaster of Towanda 17 years.

FEVER CLOSES PIRAEUS SHOPS

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—Reports of the dangerous spread of the epidemic of dengue fever which has swept Greece, continued to pour in to Athens today.

At Piraeus 300 shops and 72 factories were closed by lack of personnel. Steamers have had great difficulty in finding crews.

The Ministry of Hygiene has divided Athens into 15 sections and appointed committees in each to care for the sick and to supervise prevention measures.

The Ministry of National Economy sent circulars to all banks and public collection agencies urging them to grant extensions to debtors who could furnish certificates that they were suffering from the fever.

FIRST OF BIRTHDAY NOTES FROM JUDD GIVEN DAUGHTER

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—A little Norwalk girl received a letter from her daddy on her eleventh birthday.

That in itself is nothing unusual but this little girl's father is dead. His name was Gray—Judd Gray, and he died because the law demanded his life and that of Mrs. Ruth Snyder for the murder of Albert Snyder.

This little girl does not know all that. All she knows is that her daddy is dead and that before he died he prepared a series of letters to be given to her, one on each birthday until she reaches 21.

By that time she probably will have learned all about her father's life and death but today she was supremely happy because she had received a letter addressed to her very own self and not only that but the letter said that she, and not her mother or aunt, should read it.

The letter was delivered by Samuel L. Miller, of New York, who was attorney for Gray in his fight for life. Neither Miller, Mrs. Gray nor Mrs. Frank T. Brundage, the little girl's aunt, would comment on the latter as they were unaware of the contents.

Levine May Take Off Today -:- From London to New York -:- With "Queen of Diamonds"

LOVING COUPLE

MR. AND MRS. LEVINE

While his wife sits in their New York home, hoping for his success, Charles Levine awaits favorable weather to hop the Atlantic from London with another woman—Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds."

SUCCEEDS CHAMBERLIN

BERT ACOSTA

Instead of Clarence Chamberlin, who piloted Levine across the Atlantic westward last summer, to Germany, Levine has chosen for his pilot Bert Acosta, who flew the same "pond" with Commander Byrd.

THE COLUMBIA

JUNKED FOR SUCCESSOR

The dependable "Columbia," Levine's vehicle last year, has been junked and at Croydon Field, London, poised on the runway, is Levine's new ship which he acquired from Prof, Junkers, noted German manufacturer. If weather reports are favorable, Levine and Acosta may take off today with the woman who was beaten by Amelia Earhart in the race to be the first woman to fly the Atlantic.

THE FAIR PASSENGER

MABEL BOLL

Levine and Miss Boll in the new plane flew from Germany to London over the week-end. "Amelia beat me eastward, but I'll be the first woman to conquer it westward," she predicted.

CHARLES LEVINE

The London-to-New York flight has never been successfully completed. Will this daring, if sometimes reckless flier succeed?

PLANING MILL DESTROYED

FETES BRING MILK, ICE FUND TOTAL TO $1,921

Cool weather often acts as a deterrent upon benefits for The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund, but the bit of a drop in the thermometer which the weather man sent to Pittsburgh last week-end seemed to have no effect on the numbers of benefits and gifts for the fund. It grew last week faster than during almost any other week since it was opened in June. And it has only to gather $78.94 unto itself and it will have reached $2,000, for today it stands at $1,921.06.

Without the milk, which is the greatest expense borne by the Milk and Ice Association, nothing could be done to help these poor little waifs of the city's congested districts. But given the milk alone there would still remain much to be done for them. It is the proper food plus the instruction which the officials give the mothers that makes the satisfactory records. These records, kept for nearly 30 years, tell the story of thousands of babies snatched from starvation into health and strength. The association is dependent on the generosity of a philanthropic public for its maintenance. The Sun-Telegraph will be glad to list your contribution.

TWO CHILDREN ABANDONED

Two small children, abandoned in the street yesterday by their mother, are being cared for today at the Juvenile detention rooms. The children, one 3 and the other 15 months, were found in South Twenty-seventh street by Patrolman J. Tynen.

Fred Tunton, 26, of Sarah street, who told police that the children had been abandoned, was arrested as a material witness. Tunton is said to have informed police that the children's mother had left the children near a house in Sarah street and to have placed their clothing on a doorstep.

JAMES STREET STORE HELD UP

An armed robber covered Howard Kuntz, manager of the Eagle Grocery store, 1006 James street, with a revolver this morning, took $49 from a cash register, $15 from Kuntz's pockets and fled. Kuntz was alone in the store, after opening for the day's business, when the robber entered.

HELD IN GIRL ATTACK

SHE ACCUSES POOL GUARD'S BROTHER

Magistrate A. D. Brandon couldn't understand why a life-guard at a swimming pool needs a blackjack, so he held Andrew Roczenski, 26, of Penn avenue, brother of the guard at No. 9 pool in Monongahela River, for court.

Roczenski was arrested yesterday, accused of attacking Jessie Young, 13, of 220 McKean street, in the dressing room of the pool. She testified that Roczenski had held her in the dressing room for 20 minutes, made improper advances to her and threatened her with a blackjack. Her cries brought Joseph Michael, 13, of 515 Carson street, who, it was testified, was threatened by Roczenski. The boy summoned a patrolman and Roczenski was arrested.

The prisoner in court today said he had taken the blackjack to the pool to give to his brother, for whom he was subbing as a guard.

POLICE COLLAR RACE FIGHTERS

A free-for-all fight between Negroes and whites at Singer and Chartiers avenues, McKees Rocks, early yesterday, resulted in arrest of 11 persons, including two women.

Several shots were fired by police who arrived during the thick of the fight when clubs and rocks were being wielded.

The Negroes were en route to a "party" when a number of white men are said to have passed remarks about them. The Negroes chased the tormentors into a house and then broke windows with rocks.

$4,000 BLAZE ROUTS FAMILY IN LUPTON ST.

Fire, early today, routed the family of James Toller, Negro, of 569 Lupton street, and caused $4,000 damage. Toller, his wife and four children escaped. The blaze started in the kitchen of the two-story frame dwelling and spread rapidly.

NOTABLES BANQUET ITALY'S EX-CONSUL AND SUCCESSOR

High tribute to the energy, diplomacy and humanity of Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, former vice consul of Italy in Pittsburgh, recently appointed general consul at Chicago, was paid by Pittsburgh notables at a testimonial dinner to him and to his successor, Dr. Giovanni Giurato, at Hotel Schenley last night.

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh; Dr. W. J. Holland, director emeritus of Carnegie Museum; Dr. Andre Avinoff, director of Carnegie Museum; James Malone, councilman; Congressman S. A. Kendall, of Fayette county; United States District Attorney John D. Meyer and others were on the speakers' list. All spoke glowingly of the work accomplished by Mr. Castruccio during his vice consulate in Pittsburgh.

Vice Consul Giurato was a major in the Italian army, served the Italian government in diplomatic work in Ecuador and Albania, has written several books on politics and speaks English, French, Spanish, Portuguese and Italian. He promised to co-operate to the full in all departments relating to Italians living in the Pittsburgh district.

Others who spoke included: Luigi Casalotti, president of the Italian Legion, Dr. Charles J. Barone; Dr. Q. Alvino, director of Belvedere Hospital; Antonio Ceryo, grand orator, Order Sons of Italy; Donato Ardolino, president, Sons of Columbus; Vito Bianco, Fascist delegate for Western Pennsylvania; Frank Canuti, attorney; Judge J. W. Dawson, of Fayette county, and Dr. H. Langer, of West Penn Hospital.

Dr. Castruccio, who was a commander of dirigibles during the World War, and who was personally acquainted with several members of the ill-fated expedition of Nobile to the Arctic, spoke yesterday feelingly regarding what he believed were misunderstandings of the public towards the disaster.

"I feel that many people have condemned Nobile and other members of his party for their part in what occurred in the Arctic wastes where they were marooned for so long," Castruccio said. "But we here cannot judge what those men went through in mental and physical hardships. Yet I do know, down in my heart, that there was not a member of that party who did not act in the highest sense of sacrifice and courage.

"The rescue of Nobile, in advance of his comrades, was not of his choice and the world must not judge before these men make their full report. I cannot think they failed in any instance to fulfill their part as courageous and unselfish adventurers."

BUGS BAER Says

THE Department of Entomology which blooms down in Washington is up against what Tunney would call a cul-de-sac.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Which is French for a blind alley.

A Long Island lady who is tired of slapping her stockings has imported a stable of cannibal mosquitoes from the home factory in Africa.

The Long Island lady says the cannibal skeeters will chew the ears off the ordinary mosquito and will not attack human beings except in times of national stress and peril.

She wants to turn the cannibals loose on the Atlantic seaboard. But she doesn't guarantee to keep 'em off the Lincoln Highway.

Dr. Preston, of the Health Squad, refuses to allow the cannibals to take out their first citizenship papers.

Every winged leopard of the swamps is imbued with the desire to take the national census firsthand. He requires no assistance and one sharp dot on the line makes his contract legal.

But good old Doc Preston is holding out for a better offer. He wants to know what happens after the cannibals Fletcherize the native skeeters. What do they eat next?

Even if they are vegetarians they are liable to mistake a citizen for a carrot.

The Long Island lady is trying to make the situation better by making it worse.

The full-grown marsh eagle can stand on his hind legs and look through a keyhole. They are big, fat and actually build nests like crows. But suppose we are attacked by a flotilla of international humming - birds with revolving beaks that can drill through the foundations of the Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland and kill a cashier in Detroit?

We are with Doc Preston. We will stick to our old porch playmates rather than be forced to have our mosquito netting made by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Finer Jersey Frocks

In the Sportswear Shop

A new group of frocks, at $25.00, which will be shown tomorrow, gives an idea of what the Sportswear Shop is doing in presenting the smarter phase of the jersey mode. These dresses are of a beautifully fine, lightweight jersey, made in styles which are really different.

There are one and two-piece frocks with new necklines, new skirt movement, and with silk appliqued in contrasting bands or set into the jersey in flower pattern. Also, there is an ensemble style, with skirt and cardigan jacket of the jersey, and attached blouse of silk.

Sizes for both women and misses.

A Sale of Dressy Coats Women's and Misses'—$79.50

This event, planned to give extreme values to encourage early buying of fall coats, is getting response because the garments are obviously of the better kind.

They are made of fashionable, rich cloths, in black and autumn colors, and trimmed with a wide variety of flat and long-haired furs, many of them lavishly trimmed.

Young women preparing for college are showing special interest in the misses' group.

Navy-and-white and black-and-white striped silk frocks always appeal to women with a practical turn of mind, and these particular ones have been made with an element of dash.

They have white georgette vestees, jabots, collars and cuffs, pipings of bright red, trimmings of novelty buttons, and skirts pleated to have a youthful swing.

A nice grade of flat crepe has been used in their making, treated both lengthwise and crosswise in the different models, to vary the effects of the stripes.

Misses' sizes 14 to 20; women's sizes 36 to 44.

News From Capital of Motion Picture Production and Notes of Current Theater Attractions Here

RUSSIAN REFUGEE -:- JACK OF ALL TRADES -:- MOVIE BAD MAN

Paul Guertzman, 15-year-old Russian refugee, is now in Hollywood learning camera technique in the Paramount studios.

Here is Jack Dempsey planting a fervid right smack to the jaw of his wife, Estelle Taylor. The couple are to co-star in a stage drama to be produced by David Belasco, also seen above.

Louis Wolheim, movie badman, is in the supporting cast of Vilma Banky's "The Awakening." He also appears in "Tempest" with John Barrymore.

STOCK DRAMAS IN THEATERS

Commencing this evening, the Nixon Players will present "Craig's Wife," winner of the 1926 Pulitzer Prize as the best play of the year. It was written by George Kelly, author of "The Torch Bearers," and will be the closing play of the Nixon Players this season.

The George Sharp Players will give their first performance of the farce-comedy, "It's a Boy," in the Pitt tonight. It is said to be good summer entertainment, built principally for laughing purposes, but with an undercurrent of good, sound philosophy.

The Alvin will open its regular theatrical season with a special holiday matinee next Monday (Labor Day). The opening attraction will be "Burlesque," a play by George Manker Watters and Arthur Hopkins. Hal Skelly and Barbara Stanwyck play the central featured roles. Seats go on sale at the Alvin box office Thursday morning.

Anniversary of Valentino's Death Commemorated by Movie Colony at Impressive Service

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 27.

THE second anniversary of Rudy Valentino's death was commemorated with impressive services at the Hollywood Cemetery, where stands his mausoleum. Besides the general attendance of motion picture celebrities, there was a great crowd of pople from all walks of life. A crowd, incidentally, conspicuous for the number of men it included. The steps of the mausoleum were banked with floral tributes. Most striking of these was a huge cross easily 15 feet in height bearing the legend, "We Never Forget."

Jean Acker sent a wreath, with the message, "Love is stranger than death." An old lady, tears streaming down her furrowed cheeks, told me that she had seen Natcha Ramsova. I didn't, however, and I have not been able to confirm my informant's words. H. B. Warner represented the motion picture industry at the services.

While the bureau of vital statistics compiles its lists of births, deaths and marriages—the show goes on.

Hollywood has a great treat in store as soon as Jimmy Gleason completes "The Shannons of Broadway" for Universal, and Robert Armstrong gets through with Pathe's "Leathernecks." Then these two are going to put on their famous stage play, "Is Zat So," which has not as yet been seen in Hollywood, although it did get to San Francisco, and played a short run in Los Angeles. Ethel Kent, who is Mrs. Armstrong, will play the role of the stenographer. This play ran for three years, and Gleason declares that there are still demands for it from all over the country. But what with the local revival, "The Shannons," and his new Vilma Banky film-story, Jimmy is too busy to do any touring. And the movies have a firm hold on Armstrong.

The final all-day trip of the season to Rock Springs Park will be held on Labor Day.

"Smooth skin instantly attracts," says Victor Fleming, PARAMOUNT director

"Every screen star realizes how vitally important this beauty is. Her skin must have real loveliness under the close-up lights."

A QUICK throb of emotion—you catch your breath at the flower-like beauty of smooth, soft skin.

Screen stars unfailingly possess this loveliness which makes the close-up's appeal irresistible. Motion picture directors insist on skin so perfect that the pitiless close-up lights reveal only alluring beauty. Screen stars know smooth skin is vital to their career.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. There are in Hollywood 433 important actresses, including all stars. 417 of these use this fragrant, white soap.

All the great film studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms.

"Many girls lacking great beauty, but possessing lovely skin, have passed on the road to fame women with perfect features. Lux Toilet Soap is a great help in keeping the skin smooth and lovely."
Bebe Daniels

VIRGINIA VALLI, the beautiful star, says—"I delight in the marvelous velvety way Lux Toilet Soap leaves my skin."

MERNA KENNEDY, lovely United Artists star, says—"Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin marvelously smooth."

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

CONTINUING a tour of foreign lands, the languorous music of the Hawaiian Islands will be brought to radio listeners in the General Motors Family Party to be broadcast through the NBC System, including WCAE, at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Holoua's Hawaiians and a novelty orchestra, under the direction of Joseph Green, will perform. In 1901, Mr. Holoua and his 45 Hawaiian Troubadours came to this country, and at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, they conducted a Hawaiian village where they entertained as a feature of the exposition. After that they toured the country on the Keith circuit and played in the leading theatrical houses. Their last important engagement was with the Biltmore Hotel Corporation. There are now five performers. Of these five, three are of the original 45.

Pietro Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" is the United Opera Company's offering to be heard at 9 o'clock over WJAS. As is its custom, the United Opera Company will sing this opera in English. At 10 o'clock, the Captivators, assisted by several soloists and a mixed and male quartet, are to be heard in their usual 60 minutes of popular and semi-classical melodies.

A descriptive piece, "In a Bird Store," by Lake, will be played by the Trail Blazers, a band directed by Harold Sanford, during the Riverside hour to be broadcast through KDKA at 9 o'clock. "Jolly Robbers," a rollicking overture by Suppe; a selection from Offenbach's opera, "Tales of Hoffman," and "Washington Grays March," by Grofulia, also will be included among the band numbers. Fischer's "That Stolen Melody," and the well known "Gypsy Trail," by Galloway, will be sung by a male quartet.

Lilian Bucknam, mezzo-soprano, will be heard with Roxy and His Gang over KDKA at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Bucknam has been a radio artist for the past three years, singing operatic and light opera roles, and ballads, but only recently she joined the Gang.

Turning temporarily from the lighter music of modern composers, the A. and P. Gypsies will delve into the archives of European masters for their broadcast over WCAE at 8:30 o'clock. Seeking to adapt themselves to the reminiscent mood of Gypsy King Harry Horlick, they will offer first the familiar "Poet and Peasant" overture of Von Suppe, and follow that with Drigo's "Valse Bluette." Other numbers will be the four-part "Peer Gynt" suite by the Scandinavian giant, Edvard Grieg, and the love dance intermezzo from "Madam Sherry." Songs to be heard during the same period will include the ballad "Suzette."

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENTS ON SOCIAL EVENTS

Gay Week Ahead at Summer Resorts

THIS week will be, I daresay, the gayest of the entire season at the various society resorts. For everyone knows it will be the last week when the various circles won't be broken up by departures. Everyone will be busy entertaining everyone else. The week-end just past was marked by many and many an entertainment, I hear, even more than the usual week-end has offered all summer. Of course there will be some folks who will not think of returning until the latter part of September, but almost everyone will come home early next month to open up city homes, to shop, to get everything in readiness for our fall season.

At Spring Lake, N. J., the most brilliant event of the week-end just past was the ball at the Monmouth Hotel by Gov. Moore, of New Jersey, and Mrs. Moore.

Before the ball there were, of course, many dinners. And one of the largest dinners was given by some folks you all know—the T. Clifton Jenkins, who entertained at their summer home, "Swanhurst." Among their guests were Mrs. Alfred E. Jenkins, of Pittsburgh, of course, and Edwin Rhea, of Oxford, England. The host and hostess' debutante daughter, Dorothea, was there and their daughter, Elizabeth, too. Following the dinner all the guests went to the ball.

AND now for a bit of "fall talk." A new name has been spoken of here and there as an important addition to the debutante list for this year—Louise Reed, daughter of the W. Edgar Reeds, of Fifth avenue. Louise and her parents are expected home from Europe in September. Louise, don't you remember, decided to spend a year studying abroad instead of "coming out" last year.

MRS. RICHARD S. LARGE and her daughters, Betty and Nancy, of Solway street, have been with Mrs. Large's parents, the Jesse C. Davises, at their summer residence in Margate, Atlantic City. On October 15 the Davises will go back to St. Petersburg, Fla., there winter residence, you know.

NEW YORK is seeing quite a few Pittsburgh folks these days on their return from summer resorts or on their way to a new one for the last days of the season. Mrs. Enoch Rauh and her daughter, Miss Helen Rauh, have been at the Ambassador in New York, we've been told. And the Louis A. Brennemans have been stopping at the Barclay.

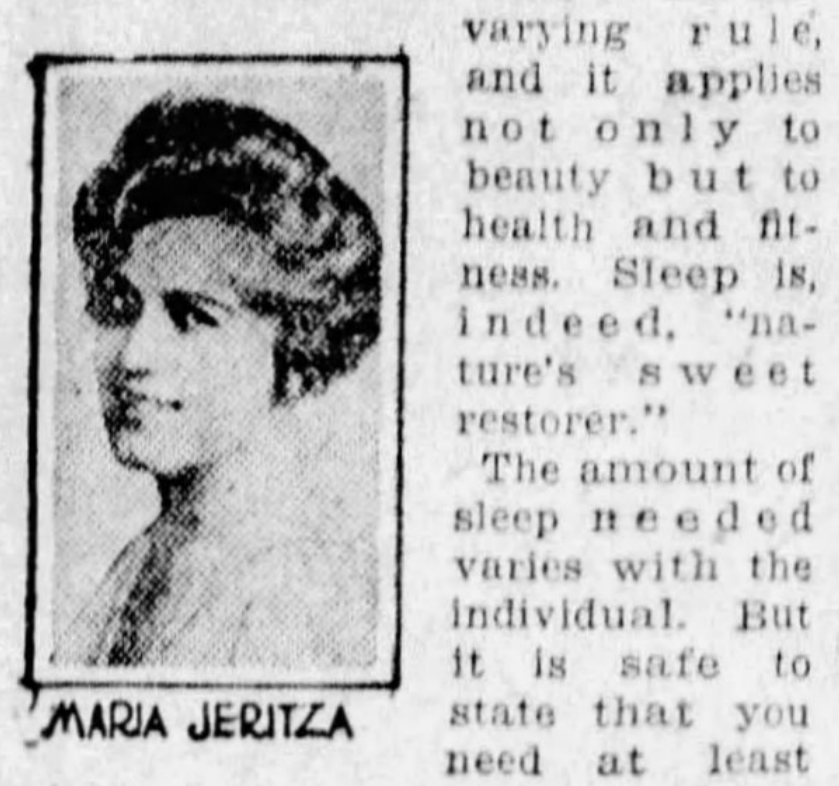
How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

Sleeping for Health and Charm.



MARIA JERITZA

A WOMAN who does not get sufficient sleep will not long remain beautiful. This is an unvarying rule, and it applies not only to beauty but to health and fitness. Sleep is, indeed, "nature's sweet restorer."

The amount of sleep needed varies with the individual. But it is safe to state that you need at least eight hours of sleep, sound, dreamless slumber every night.

If you cannot sleep the chances are you have broken some physical law of health or else are upset mentally and emotionally. The intelligent way to overcome insomnia is to trace and remove the cause.

That cause may be too much coffee or tea, excessive smoking, lack of ventilation, indigestion, over-fatigue, worry or fear.

If you do not sleep well, try these suggestions:

Fifteen minutes outdoors before you go to bed.

Leisurely undressing and removal of grime from the face with cold cream.

A leisurely lukewarm bath.

Sipping a glass of warm milk or even cold milk, 20 minutes before retiring.

* * *

Relaxing comfortably and reading about 10 minutes from an unexciting magazine or book before switching out the lights.

One minute of deep breathing.

Above all else, do not take drugs to induce slumber, except on your physician's personal prescription.

Opiates do not bring restful, healthful sleep, but will leave you hollow-eyed and haggard the following morning. Keep your health of mind and body all it should be, then you should be able to "let go" and drop off into sound sleep five minutes after you lie down on your bed at night.

Speaking of beds, it is most important that the mattress and springs should be of the best. Money spent on a good box spring and mattress is well invested in health and beauty.

Open all your bedroom windows, and, if necessary, protect yourself from flies and mosquitoes by means of mosquito netting thrown over the bed. Use only a small pillow.

Overeating sometimes brings on sleeplessness. Under-exercising is another potent cause. If you make it a habit to eat only a bowl of warm milk with a few crackers for your evening meal and walk five miles daily, the chances are you will sleep like a log and awaken in the morning with the nerve-lines ironed out of your face and weariness banished from mind and body.

Do not worry if you find it hard to sleep. Resolve to rest, even though you do not sleep. Just getting up and walking about the room may rest you.

Put a cold compress on your head, make your bed coverings comfortable, neither too heavy nor too light; place your small hot-water bottle at the nerve center at the small of your back or the nape of your neck, lie flat and relaxed on your bed, and, before you know it, you will have drifted off to that wondrous never-never land which leads to the realm of health and beauty.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A WOMAN OF FORTY

By LOUISE P. ARMSTRONG

"I CAN imagine no excuse," said Tom Winston severely, "for anyone listening to a conversation on a party line."

"You think I should have refused to hear what Clara Whittaker told me?" asked Dolly, his wife, defensively.

"You shouldn't have encouraged gossip," Tom said, in that maddeningly superior way he had. "And what business is it of Clara's who Mrs. Davison talks to over the 'phone in her husband's absence? Besides," he added, "people are often mistaken in what they hear. The most innocent remarks sounds suspicious—especially if the listener is hoping to hear some scandal."

Dolly heard him meekly, but held her head high, and a flush arose to the fair oval of her cheeks and spread to where the red-gold ringlets touched her forehead. Well, she might have known Tom would defend Minna Davison—just to save his face!

Tom retired behind the barrier of his afternoon paper; Dolly pulled her chair nearer the light and began some mending she had long put off. Funny thing about Minna Davison, she thought. Nobody would have accused her of having an intrigue, she was so reserved and quiet.

The Davisons had just come to live in the neighborhood. George Davison was special agent for a large insurance company and traveled over the entire state. They had taken a small cottage out near the Country Club, half-mile down the highway from the Winstons' home. Tom and Dolly had called on them; Tom and George Davison had talked shop while Minna and Dolly discussed clothes and housekeeping. And even that first night Tom had been impressed with Minna.

"It's a real treat," he had declared on the way home, "to see a reserved, dignified woman like her."

"But there's something baffling about her," Dolly had said with a frown. "I don't know whether I'm going to like her or not!"

"Nonsense," Tom had said. "It's just because she's older than you are—more poised, and—well, more sophisticated. I'd say she was about 40, wouldn't you? George Davison looks older, but then women are so clever in preserving their looks!"

Yes, it was plain to see Tom admired the stately, handsome Mrs. Davison, and the thought of his admiration vexed his wife profoundly, especially after his remark concerning her lack of poise! But at the time Dolly hid her vexation under a smile. It was only when Clara Whittaker had told of the indiscreet conversation she had overheard on their party line between Minna Davison and some man who must have been a ranger, for his voice was unown to Clara, that Dolly reiced openly in discrediting the oman in Tom's eyes.

"Maybe now you won't think ie such a wonder, Tom," she id. "Clara plainly heard her y 'darling'—and he'd better not me this week-end. Then she id something about Westchester ara couldn't catch. She, of urse, meant George Davison ould be out of town next week—r I heard him telling you he excted to spend next Sunday in estchester."

t was then Tom had indignantflung down his paper and exessed his scorn of feminine gos and disgust at anyone who would deliberately listen to a private telephone talk.

Dolly kept silent with difficulty. She was hurt, amazed to see that what she had told Tom had not influenced him in the slightest degree against Mrs. Davison; on the contrary, he had now come out into the open as her staunch defender.

It wasn't jealousy, Dolly had thought—this feeling against Minna Davison that possessed her. Why should she be jealous of a woman 40 years old, however well preserved she might be? It was just a resentment against the woman's aloofness, superiority! But now she understood! Mrs. Davison was involved in a clandestine affair with another man—she was one of those dangerous women! And if she was that sort, what if she might turn her dangerous charms on Tom? Dolly had heard that no man was safe from a designing woman.

So gradually Dolly's resentment grew into real alarm. She felt she had reason to fear her new neighbor, so long as Tom admired her.

She was coming home from a golf game when she met the stranger. He was tall, with a black wisp of mustache on his upper lip, black eyes and an olive complexion—and he was the handsomest man she had ever seen! She gasped as he lifted his hat politely, asking her to direct him to the Davison home. Surely he couldn't be—? Why, he was years younger than Minna! Dolly's face hardened as she took in the situation, although she smiled and said: "They're neighbors of mine, and I'll walk with you over there—show you the way."

The youth looked puzzled. "Very good of you," he murmured, "but—"

"Oh, it won't be any trouble," Dolly assured him, trying to look brazened and sophisticated. She'd show Tom! But her real thought was for the boy. She was determined to break up the whole ugly business, let Minna Davison see that she—her nearest neighbor—knew of her affair with the handsome stranger! How could a woman forty years old—?

They met Minna in the hall, and when she saw Dolly come in with her guest her face went white. But into her eyes there came the light of joy—an unholy joy, Dolly Winston thought! And she held out both hands which the stranger eagerly grasped.

Then she turned to Dolly Winston and said: "Since you've come, my dear, we must let you into our secret—Ralph and I!"

Dolly flushed angrily and bit her lip. "I'm sure—"

But the older woman silenced her with a sweet smile, and the words she uttered made Dolly suddenly faint with humiliation!

Tom wondered at his wife's chastened mood that night. After dinner she sat in silence with her sewing while he watched her, his paper lying forgotten on the hearthrug.

"On my way back from town," he finally said, "I met a rather nice looking boy. He stopped me and asked about the New York train, and he seemed to have come from the Davisons. I wonder if you saw him?"

"What business is it of ours," flamed Dolly, "who calls on her?"

Tom did not seem to notice her agitation. "Mrs. Davison is a woman of rare charm," he said, "But I think I understand the sad atmosphere of mystery about her that so irritated you at first." Sam Nettleton used to know her long ago. He told me she married a wealthy man against the wishes of his family, and when he died suddenly she gave her child up to its grandparents because she felt they could do so much more for him than she could. She agreed not to see him. It seems George Davison is a queer sort—he feels bitterly about the way those rich people treated Minna when she was poor and alone in the world, and—well, he worships the ground she walks on, but I believe he's jealous of Minna's son and determined that she shall never have anything to do with the boy now that he is grown and can see his mother if he chooses."

Dolly looked up at her husband, but was still silent.

Tom arose and came over to her chair. He laid a hand on the golden head caressingly. "You're worried," he said, "because you have promised not to tell me something Minna Davison asked you to tell no one that her son loves his mother—comes to see her when George is away from home—isn't that it?"

Dolly nodded. "I'm so sorry for her," she cried, and a bright tear dropped on the sock she had been darning.

"So am I!" Tom said. "She told me," he added in some confusion, "the first time we called, that I reminded her of—of someone she loved a great deal!"

So that was it! After all Dolly was reassured for the first time. The woman was charming, but her interest in Tom was purely maternal. She didn't realize that she was paying Minna Davison a compliment when she sighed in relief!

EARLY STRAW VOTERS PUT HOOVER IN LEAD

ELECTION MAY GO AS WOMEN BALLOT

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Confidence of party leaders that Herbert Hoover's presidential candidacy would be strongly supported by the country's women voters is being strengthened daily by the tabulations in the nation-wide straw poll of the Hearst newspapers, It was declared yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Roy O. West.

"The results to date in the straw balloting entirely confirm my own belief that Mr. Hoover offers a strong appeal to the great and powerful group of female voters," Mr. West declared.

"I have been reading the poll figures daily in the Washington Herald, and I have checked them very carefully with my knowledge of conditions both in the Middle West and throughout the country," Mr. West stated, "and although it is early in the campaign, and the vote is relatively small, I have been impressed with the poll's apparent accuracy, and much pleased with the indication it gives as to how the nation's women will cast their ballots in November.

"On several occasions, I have gone over the poll painstakingly, state by state, with men who are connected with the National campaign. We were all impressed."

In the opinion of Secretary West, the Hoover campaign "is just beginning to show momentum."

"I believe," he said, "that as the poll proceeds, it will show daily more and more favorably for Mr. Hoover."

As an illustration of how Hoover "reaches into" the minds of voters, Mr. West related:

"Only today I was introduced to a man who had been hesitating as to whether to vote for Mr. Hoover because of the wet and dry question, but he resolved the doubt because, as we talked, he recalled the manner in which the present candidate conducted the food administration during the war."

Returning to consideration of the straw poll, Mr. West said:

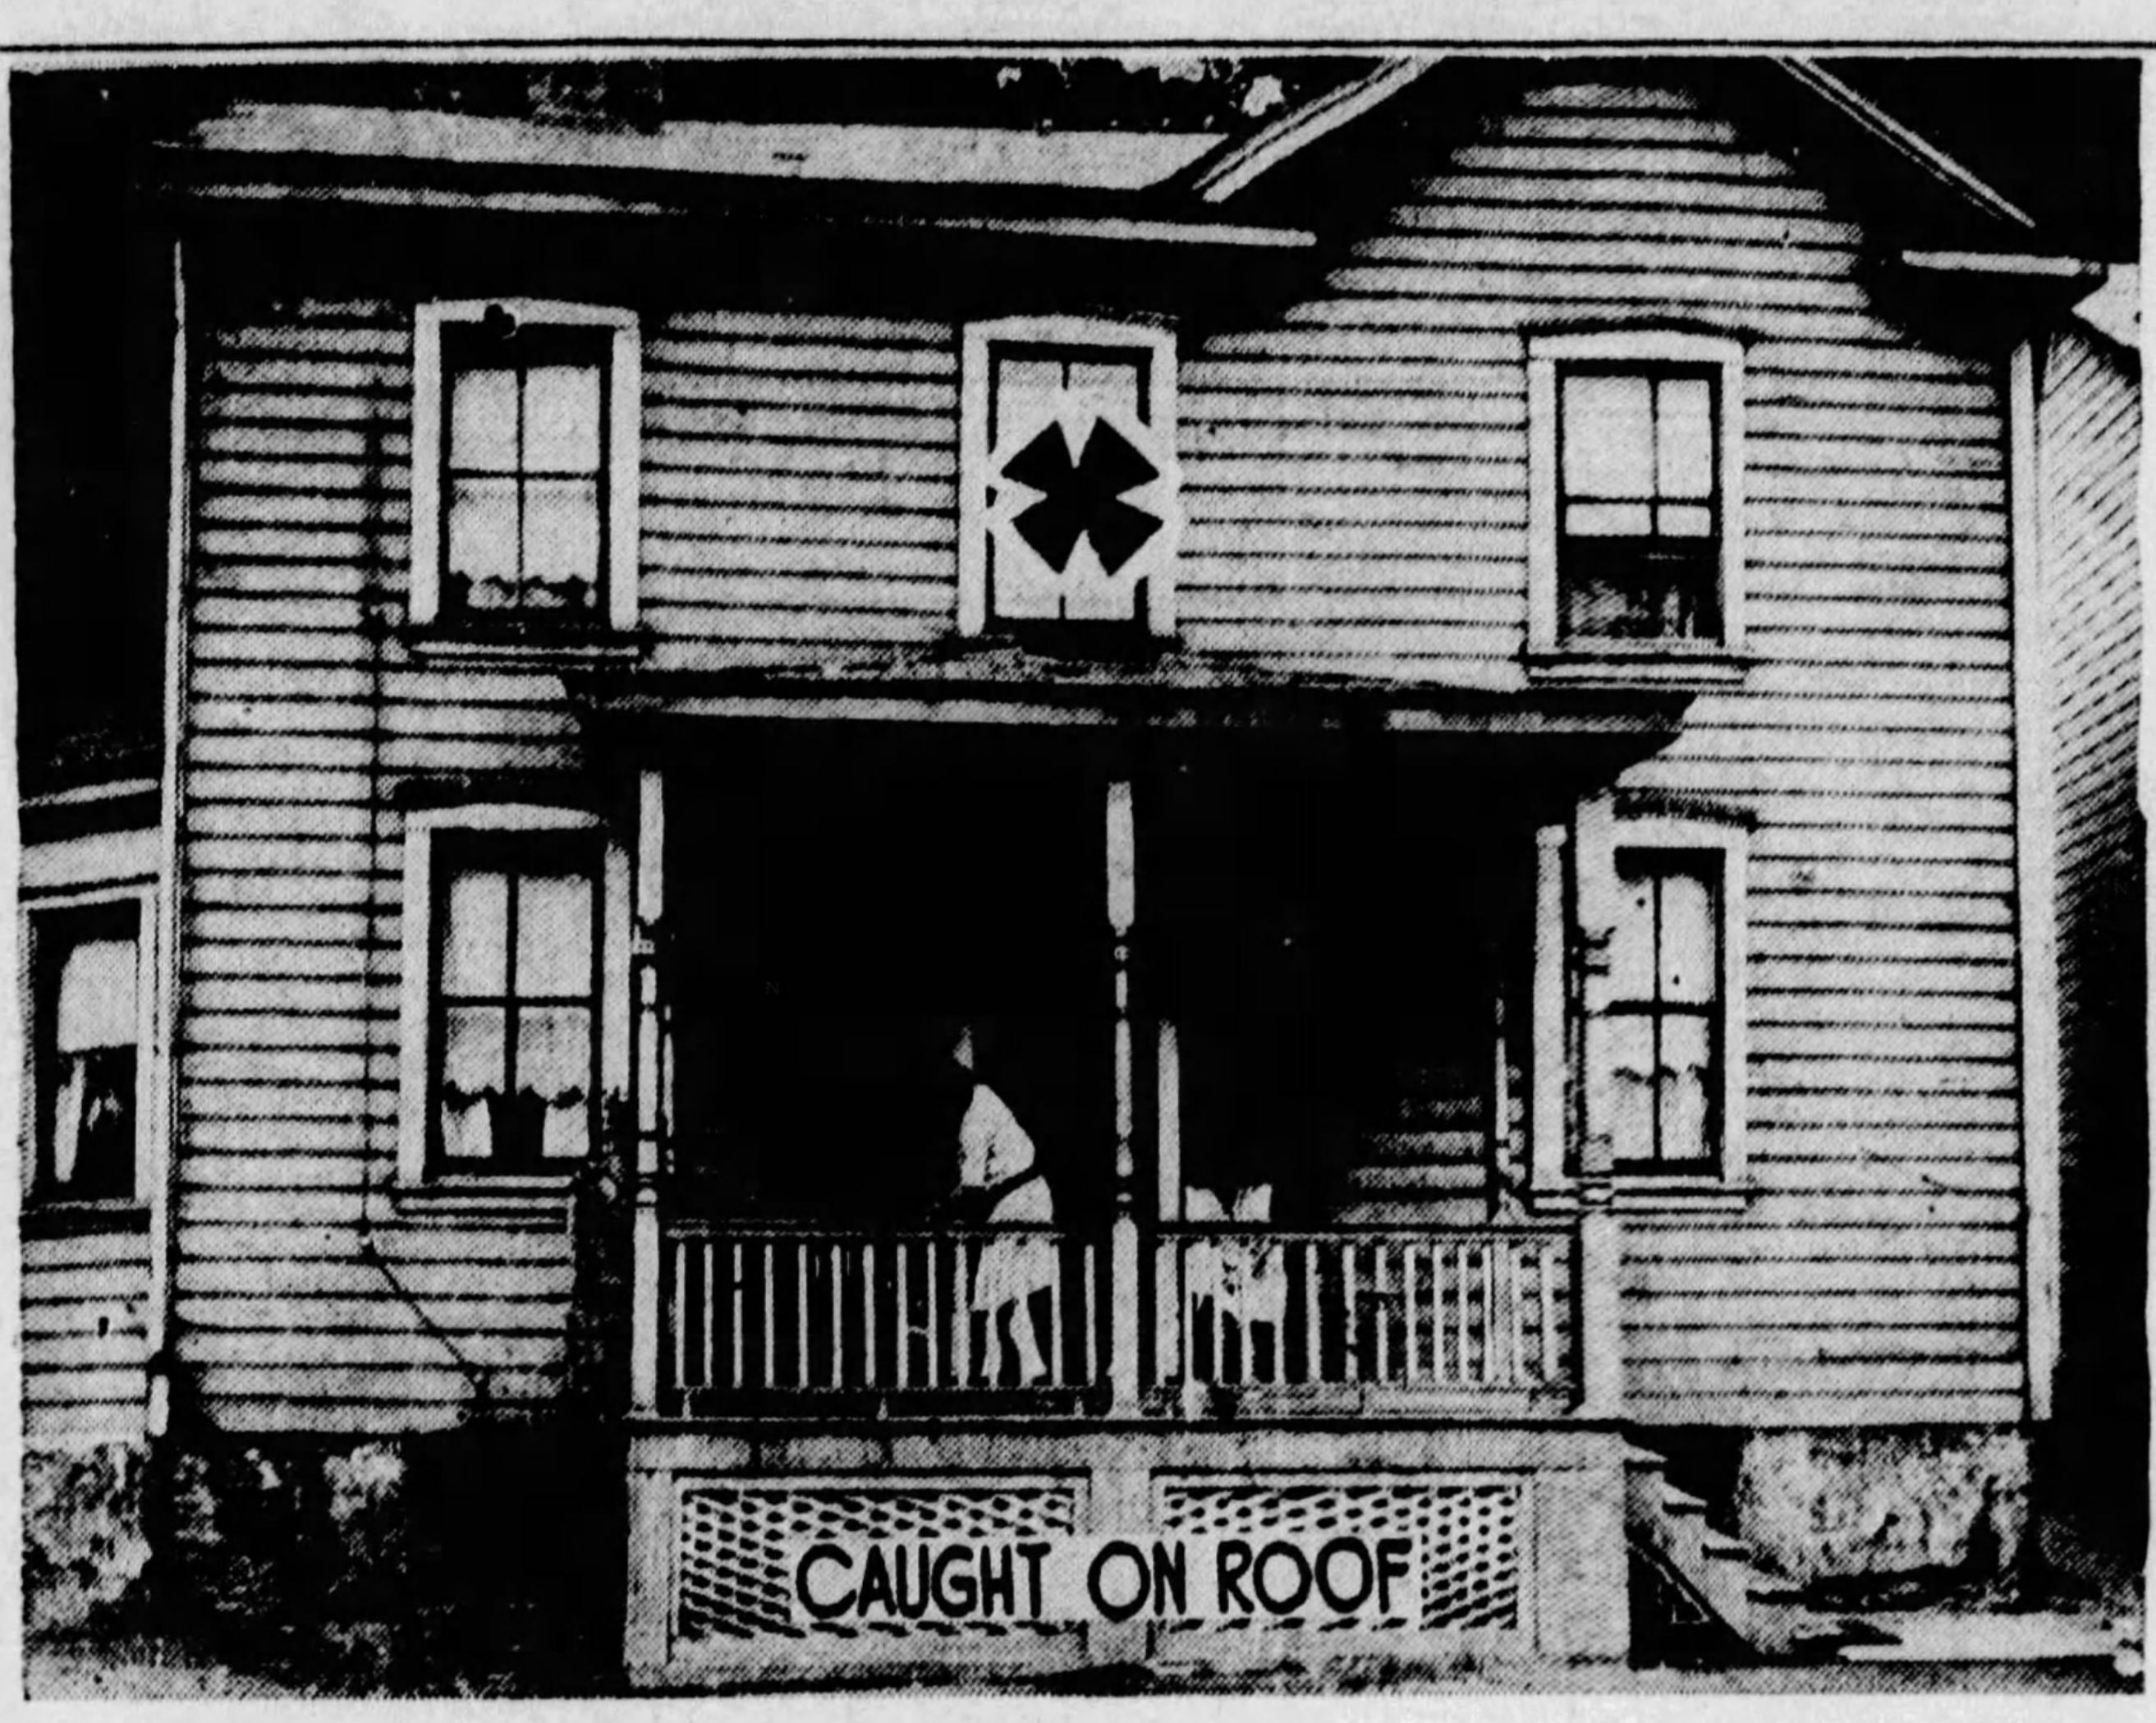
"It has been frequently observed in campaign circles the vote being compiled by the Hearst papers is important because of the widely extended facilities under which it is possible for the 'straw' to be taken."

Burglar in Bedroom -:- Oakmont Woman Screams -:- Now He's in Jail

ROUTED BURGLAR

BURGLAR DEPARTS

Mrs. Mary Stanich awoke in her Oakmont home only to find a burglar in her bedroom. She screamed.



BURGLAR HESITATES

The burglar fled to the porch roof of this modest home in Plum street. A policeman heard the screams. He saw the burglar, shoeless, climbing through a window to the roof. The marauder—considerate man!—had removed his shoes so as not to awaken Mrs. Stanich.

While the young man was trying to descend from the roof, Patrolman Helwig introduced himself. Then they had their pictures taken (above). The prisoner said he was Franklin Rimmel, 21, of Verona.

G.O.P. SUMMONS 300 WORKERS

The first campaign meeting of the Republican organization in this district will be held tomorrow night at Hotel Henry headquarters.

Three hundred district leaders are expected to be present, according to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, county chairman, who called the meeting. It is expected that the county program for the campaign will be planned, although matters may be held up until after a much heralded telephone call carried on by Armstrong with W. L. Mellon, who is in London.

The Republican women, led by Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, county vice chairman, are expected to start their campaign this week.

HEARST POLL ACCURATE, LEADER SAYS

By JOHN W. DIENHART.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Political sentiment throughout the nation 10 weeks before the men and women voters elect the next President of the United States was disclosed today by the Hearst newspapers' nation-wide poll to be as follows:

Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, is the choice of the women and of the rural districts.

Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic rival, is strongest in the big cities.

Hoover, however, is in the lead in the popular vote.

Straws taken in 35 of the 48 states give this result:

Hoover, 168,539.

Smith, 160,481.

While these figures indicate a neck and neck race, the bulk of the returns are from the thickly settled centers. Straws from the rural districts, now coming in, show Hoover running better there than Smith.

DRY LEAD REKINDLED

Never before in the country's history have women played such an important part. Hoover's pronouncement in favor of building up the American home and Smith's plea for modification of the dry law, it seems, kindled the old fires which had much to do with the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Of the 193,596 women's votes cast to date, Hoover won 56.4 per cent and Smith, 43.6 per cent. In some of the states the women may be the determining factor in the electoral vote.

Smith, at present, holds 51.3 per cent of the total men's vote. Hoover has 48.7 per cent of them.

Smith is the favorite son of his own New York city, but Hoover is ahead of him in the Albany area.

A cross section view of the situation in New York follows:

	Hoover.	Smith.
New York City	5,434	10,424
Adjoining counties	2,708	1,280
Syracuse area	20,392	13,867
Albany area	2,851	1,985
Rochester, Buffalo and Western New York	6,651	8,952
Totals	38,036	36,508

In the Pittsburgh district in Pennsylvania, Hoover polled 2,190 to Smith's 2,229, but in the rural neighborhoods Hoover ran 903 to Smith's 663. Philadelphia has not yet been canvassed.

HOOVER IN MARYLAND

Hoover is behind Smith in Baltimore, but the 23 counties of Maryland give this result:

Hoover, 8,818; Smith, 7,245.

As indicated by the earlier returns, the election probably will be settled by the battle in the eastern sector and along the Mason-Dixon line.

Hoover is sweeping the Pacific coast and the Middle West. Smith is running ahead in the southern Democratic strongholds, save Florida and Texas. The latter shows a tie vote.

In the former, Hoover has polled a total of 2,021, as against Smith's 1,484. Such of these who voted four years ago gave Coolidge only 900 to Davis' 1,851.

Here is how the border states stand:

	Hoover.	Smith.
Tennessee	3,271	2,198
Kentucky	3,370	3,128
Missouri	975	1,076

The so-called Corn Belt revolt apparently has dwindled, for Hoover is leading in the early returns from Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota and Nebraska.

Montana, which Senator Walsh claims for Smith, reflected this division of sentiment: Hoover, 165; Smith, 53. The Ohio vote was gathered in and around Toledo. It gave Hoover 216, Smith 174.

Smith is ahead in Cook county, which includes Chicago, but lagging downstate.

CINDER IN HAND COSTS LIFE OF CONTRACTOR

Blood poisoning, developing from an infection caused by a cinder lodged in his left hand five weeks ago, caused the death of Charles Miller, 63, of 4901 Kincaid street. Miller, a contractor, was injured while at work, according to the morgue report.

ONE SHOT WOUNDS TWO IN FIGHT

A bullet pierced the body of Theodore Sekulich, then burned its way across the forehead of his wife, Anna, last night, as the climax of an argument between the man and his brother-in-law, Peter Renick.

Sekulich, 48, of the Louis Run road, was taken to the McKeesport Hospital, where he is reported near death. His wife is at home, suffering from the wound on the forehead, while Renick is being sought by Baldwin township police and county detectives.

A squabble between the children of Renick and Sekulich preceded the argument, police say. Besides being relatives, the men were neighbors, and Renick, according to police, hearing of the children's differences, rushed into the home of his brother-in-law, pulled a revolver and fired.

Sekulich turned quick, and the bullet entered his back, passed through his body and struck the woman.

WRESTS PISTOL FROM SUSPECT

Attempting to shoot Wagonman Robert Purvis, of the Woods Run Station, police say, in resisting arrest, Louis Potch, 24, of 1238 Ridge avenue, North Side, was knocked down and disarmed by Purvis last night. Police say Potch, a short time before, had shot Andrew Wiecis, 39, of 134 Medley street at the Wiecis home, following an argument.

Potch is said to have fled into the mills of the Crucible Steel Company nearby where he encountered John Geisler, a watchman. Potch fired a warning shot from his pistol and continued through the mills where he met Purvis, the police assert.

Wiecis was treated at the Presbyterian Hospital for a wound in the right arm. Potch is being held at Woods Run Police Station on a suspicious person charge.

STREET SCENES: The hardest crossing for the pedestrian in town, that narrow stretch across Oliver avenue at Grant street. . . . An old woman patting the nose of a mounted policeman—wait a minute, mounted policeman's horse. . . . The largest pot of mustard in town, in a quick-and-dirty in Water street. . . . A taxi driver taking a nap. . . . A hokey-pokey man tooting his horn. . . . The highest building in town, the Grant, at Grant and Fourth avenue. . . . He likes the 15-cent magazines because he profits four cents a copy on every sale. . . . The blind boy who always seems to be arguing with his escort. . . . The waffle king of Pittsburgh. . . . If you whisper behind him: "A waffle," he'll immediately reply, without looking: "A waffle, Alice, have it well done." . . . A romantic giggly palace operative. He whispered: "There goes a killer," and you reply, knowing Pittsburgh better than he does, "There isn't a killer in the whole county." And there isn't. But there's a lot of hooey, which is slang for boloney, written about the alleged tough guys of the town.

One of the best views of Pittsburgh is to be obtained from the splendid roadway fostered and fathered by Councilman Pete McArdle. It is the roadway which runs up along the hill side of majestic Mt. Washington. Drive up and down that roadway and you get a better idea of why the downtown section is called "the golden triangle."

ENSIGN VIOLEY RANDALL, in charge of relief work of the Salvation Army headquarters, 425 Second avenue, has a new Scotch story. A week ago a 60-year-old Scotchman applied for a night's lodging. It was given to him, as was $1.85 the next morning, money for carfare. He called it "a loan." Ensign Randall had heard that before. She smiled to herself and proceeded to charge the amount up to charity. But she didn't know this Scottie. A few days later the mail brought her a cashier's check for $5. The sender was her Scotch boarder.

The above story comes to us from the city desk. We welcomed it. It is about time that the Scotch are given something besides abuse for tightness. We know few Scotchmen, but we like them for the way they stand back in the flood of stories portraying Scotch "tightness."

Here is one race, at least, that can take a million jokes. If Scotch jokes were appliy to some of the other races there would be quite a howl—and we don't mean maybe.

As one who has recorded divers jokes about the Scotch we welcome the opportunity to tell a nice story about one.

THE most peaceful hour in the downtown district comes between the hours of 6 and 7. The office people are at home and the downtown at that time takes on the appearance of a content, quiet country village. Around 7:30 and 8 o'clock the movie and theater lights begin to flash and people return to the downtown to enliven things, but the twilight zone of 6 to 7 is the quiesest time of the day.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, was born at White Lodge, Richmond, in midsummer of 1894, the son of the Duchess and Duke of York, now King George V. Guilty of much mischief during his chidhood days, he was often punished. When he grew older he was sent to Osborne Naval College, where he made rapid progress in his studies. He made his first appearance in the robes of state at the coronation of his father. Investiture of his title took place at Carnarvon Castle, in Wales.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Edward P."

By WALTER AND LEONARD TOWNSEND

CHAPTER VI. ON THE CONTINENT.

PRINCE OF WALES

IF you have seen the Prince of Wales in the full glitter of one of his many uniforms you must have noticed the great number of decorations and orders that he is forced to wear.

The Prince appreciates greatly these honors which have come to him as a consequence of his royal birth. But they do not give him the same sense of personal satisfaction which he feels in those which have been conferred on him because he had earned them.

The Prince has always intensely disliked swank and empty grandiloquence. Living amidst courtly surroundings which must constantly remind him of his righ hank he is equally at home amongst the "raw-boned" workers as when conversing with the intelligentsia.

This marks His Royal Highness at once as a young man with decided and original views.

The sons of the Royal Family, especially the Heir-Apparent to the Throne, must carry out a more or less official social and public program. In April, 1912, it was announced that H. R. H. the Prince of Wales would go to France to complete his education.

To the Prince this continental excursion was as joyous as any schoolboy's "holls."

Absence of Dignity

All his thoughts were for France, where he was to stay for a few months prior to taking the next decisive step in his career.

There were two motives for this early visit to France. Le roi Edouard had, years before, begun a very lively friendship with republican France by his frequent stays in Paris and on the French Riviera. This friendship had been further cemented by King George's and Queen Mary's visit as Lord and Lady Killarney in 1908.

It only required the young Prince's presence as a resident to seal this remarkable bond which existed between two neighborly but temperamentally opposed nations. On the other hand, the young Prince's knowledge of the "langue Francais," though excellent grammatically, left much to be desired in pronunciation.

Moreover, as he was shortly to go up to Oxford, where he would meet and associate with young men who had enjoyed a less restricted life it was deemed wise for him to gain a broader outlook upon the world by leaving, for a short time, the sheltered Royal family circles.

The Prince might have been sent to Germany, Spain, Sweden or any other European country. But there was the danger that the strict etiquette and ritual of most European courts might prove embarrassing and displeasing to the modest young Englishman, who disliked any display of pomp and power.

It was the absence of formal dignity which made the Prince's stay in France so delightfully memorable, for although the French people received the Earl of Chester (the Prince of Wales) with much enthusiasm, there was no hint of frothy adulation in their welcome.

The French people voted the "shy young Prince" as charmingly informal as his grandfather, and they were delighted by the composed dignity of his grandson which was even reflected behind his frequent moods of boyish amusement and interest.

The Prince of Wales looked very slight as he bade goodbye to his father and the French Ambassador at Victoria Station. To the onlookers he seemed remarkably youthful beside the tall, spare figure of his tutor, Mr. Hansell, who was to accompany his charge during the whole of the visit.

King George thoughtfully decided that his son would gain more pleasure from being the guest of the distinguished and popular Marquis and Marquise de Breteuil than as the royal visitor at the British Embassy in Paris.

The Prince was delighted with the scene of his temporary home—the Mansion of the Marquis in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, at the corner of the Rue Rude and overlooking the famous Arc de Triomphe.

Prince Edward's stay in France was filled with numerous activities and he saw a great deal of the country during his three months' absence from home.

The young Prince of Wales saw a great deal of the industrial side of France as well as its more picturesque districts—Lyons, the great silk manufacturing center; Creusot, Toulon, the great naval base; cosmopolitan Marseilles.

Parisian Social Events

Despite the long list of engagements which the Prince managed to fulfill, he continued his studies assiduously.

It was a very happy Prince who took his daily ride in the Boise, and strolled, after breakfast, with

Increase in Tea Consumption

THE consumption of tea has risen appreciably, according to some new statistics published. In 1913, we are told, 6.68 pounds were consumed per head of the population. Today the amount is stated to be 8.61 pounds.

Bird "Shingles" Feathers

ONLY one variety of bird is known to "shingle" its own feathers. This is a native of South America, which nibbles away each side of the tail-feather to produce a curious-looking racket effect.

HALF WIVES by Winifred Van Duzer

Fluff Hardwick Is Made Alan's Secretary and Ione Is Troubled

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar, a music publishing house in New York. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer, whom she later marries. She is always holding up as a model Ione's married sister, Jenepher, who has a small son and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Benz, Weimer's office manager, takes Ione to Tin Pan Alley, where she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed. Ione falls in love with Alan Blake, an accompanist, and they plan to be married as soon as Blake can support her. She is inclined to be jealous of Fluff Harwick, a new girl in the office. She feels that Jenepher is proving that a wife cannot hold down a job and run a household and do both successfully. She tries to be nice to Fluff, but the latter repulses her and she has her first quarrel with Blake on account of her. At Marie's house for dinner they learn all about a 50-50 marriage. Benz makes further plans to advance Ione. He tells her jobs are not handed out through friendship but ability. Alan is made branch manager for his firm and gets a raise. He urges Ione to marry him at once. Ione insists, however, on giving her employer notice and the day is set for the wedding. Alan arrives and finds Ione in her bridal attire awaiting him. After the wedding they visit Alan's folks. The following week they return to the city and hunt for an apartment. Their first meal at home is very pleasant.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

WAS it only because Alan and she had quarreled over Fluff Hartwick? Was that the reason he hesitated to tell her the silly little creature with her kitten eyes and her ridiculous curls would be working for him now in the new office?

Or did he think he had to champion Fluff because of his wife's poor opinion of the girl?

She went about her sweeping and her dusting with a determined bit of smile. "One thing I'm sure of," she told herself. "I'm not going to be a suspicious wife.

"What's in your mind comes out in your life, and there'll be no question in my heart ever. Rather never have shining beauty of love than it should be dimmed so!"

Alan was no Eddie Benz to send his interest here and there adventuring. He was too honest; his love for her was too sincere.

Yet the smile drooped when she remembered that Fluff, incompetent as she was, would not have been made Lanny's secretary if he were not quite willing.

Ione could imagine the "Vine" twining herself around his sympathy, persuading her to befriend her just as she had got Benz to give her a job in the first place.

"That's it," she decided briskly. "Lanny said it bothered him to see anyone so futile. She's played on his kindness and here I am worrying my head for no reason at all. When he sees how useless she is he'll have to let her go for the good of the department. And that will be that."

It didn't occur to her that her own practical insight was not Alan's and that "Efficiency First," the unwritten law of business, was a thing he might ignore.

So she made the apartment all shining and hung over her arm the little Japanese basket and went out to do the marketing.

Lettuce and an early tomato for a salad—how bright it would look on the tray! Roast once a week and cold cuts the next night. An apple for the brown-betty to be made from last night's bread.

Oh, economy was fun, all right! Something like a fox and geese game with your dollars for the geese and the ledger from the fox. She'd show Lan. Now if she could save $5 a week, say, there'd be $250 a year. And in five years $1,250—enough to pay $1,000 on a home like Marie's and something left besides. Well—ah, well!

She thought of it often and rather breathlessly that week. She had brought her little desk from home; now it stood in a corner of the bedroom with the ledger and the bills and her menus for the week all carefully written out, under the leaf.

And tucked away in the drawer the Wish Book.

She opened that one afternoon and began to outline the most elaborate drawing she had undertaken so far. An old-fashioned house, not too large, with gables in the roof and a fan-light over the door; a wide veranda at one end and the deep, tall chimney that means a cavernous fireplace, at the other.

She put boxes at the windows and filled them with flowers. Then a garden and a picket gate grew under her fingers.

She worked quickly and surely, quite as if it were a place she well knew. And when it was finished she slanted a road down before the gate so it was easy to see the house stood on a hill; then she made some vague, sweeping lines that could be nothing but a river.

"The River Road!" she whispered. "Tarrytown over there and the Lyall hills back here. Now does that mean I'm homesick?"

It did not, she decided. It meant instead the birth of a dream. A home in the country for her and Alan. A sweet, ecstatic thing, the Deam, true as the blue light of the jewel on her finger and as precious.

Yet it was to bring her long, aching hours; it was, indeed, almost to wreck her happiness.

No five dollars saved the first week. What Alan had given her to run the house stretched over to Saturday. Somewhat thinly, with a great lot of scheming. But it stretched.

"Ho—that's nothing! Why, I'm just starting in! Wait till next week. I'll show the whole world a thing or two next week!" So she thought, with a high jauntiness, throwing the bills aside and dropping the leaf of the desk on them.

Still it meant she couldn't get the extra stew kettle—and that only eighty cents at a store around the corner! She had but one and at night she had to cook something and then put it aside before she could begin on the next thing.

And she'd forgotten about dish towels; you can't keep house very long without those!

She opened the desk again and began to go over the bills. Looking for extravagances; devising ways of cutting down. But there were no extravagances and no ways she hadn't tried.

She would forget all her worries when Alan came in, laughing with delight at being home again, calling from the door, "Hey, Frills—how about it? C'mon now, all pretty—how about it?"

Catching her in his arms, kissing her eyes, cheeks, forehead. Swinging her off her feet and carrying her to the lounging chair, holding her on his lap with a fine, triumphant air. Feeling, at last, the yielding sweetness of her arms around his neck.

He would tell her then about his day, making much of every detail, talking of everyone, going over his plans.

She would listen jubilantly; it was almost as if he wanted her to live through with him all the hours they were apart; as if he couldn't bear even such brief separation.

At the end of the second week she was four dollars short. A dozen times she added and subtracted and went over the bills item by item. But there it was—four dollars short.

She couldn't tell Alan. She felt dismayed and defeated and horribly to blame. If she hadn't served roast two nights in a fit of recklessness!

Well, have to make it up. She'd find a way all right, and be more careful in the future!

It was Monday morning she found the way. She was sorting laundry when her eyes chanced to fall on the stationary tubs in the kitchen. Gleaming white enamel they were and quite inviting, really.

A half impish humor rushed upon her. Oh, wouldn't Mother Blake be outraged! She, herself, had no silly tradition to uphold, thank goodness. Of course she'd never had a bout with a washtub; there was a woman who came to do that work up home. But just this once now!

She turned on the water; brought soap and washing powder. And she was rubbing anxiously at one of Alan's shirts when she head a sound that sent a chill racing all along her nerves.

Splashing Sport -:- By Truda Dahl

Truda Dahl

OH HOW glorious! Just think of all the fun and joy of being able to splash through the cool water on these hot days. Lucky girl she is I'd say, 'specially when you think of all the girls who cannot enjoy themselves this way except for a very few of the hot days. For here she is on the aquaplane, towed through the gleaming, dancing waves by one who wants to tow her through life.

And he will, you know, for somewhere around Dan is watching with a zealous eye, waiting for the spill, which will turn her into the water, and give a little catch of terror to the heart of the one who loves her so. And the splashing sport will bring them so together when he "rescues" her from the watery depths that they'll decide to splash through the rest of their lives together.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

The Locket Contains a Message of Importance

IT seemed hours to me, although in reality it was but a few minutes, that I sat watching Lillian as she ran her fingers over the jewels of the costly miniature case which Eleanor Lincoln had guarded so carefully and so secretly, but which she had dropped in the excitement following the news of her "Aunt Anna's" dangerous illness.

I could not rid myself of the idea that we were doing something dishonorable in thus prying into the secrets of our young neighbor, and my distaste must have shown in my face, for when Lillian finally looked up baffled at the delicate mechanism which she believed held the key to a secret compartment, her eyes began to blaze angrily, while her verbal protests held equal rancor.

"If you'll just put a coating over that thin epidermis of yours," she said, "you'll oblige me greatly. Have you any idea that I'm relishing this snooping any more than you are? Didn't I tell you that perhaps this girl's very life may depend upon our finding out who she is and what she's up to? And more than that, in some way—I can't yet get the connection, but it will come to me—there's something more important than any one's life which may depend upon my getting any information which is lying around loose. So for the love of Lizzie the Second, do come down to earth, wipe that shocked look off your map and help me."

She had worked herself into good humor—her rages generally end that way, and she ended her tirade with a short little laugh.

"I am ashamed," I said contritely. "And I promise you I won't offend you any more, by word, look or thought. How's that?"

"Couldn't be spoken handsomer," she said. "Now take this thing and see what you can do with it. My fingers seem all thumbs, anyway."

I took the case again in my hands and with the aid of the magnifying glass scrutinized the circular line which we both believed marked the opening of a circular disk in the back of the case.

"Of cours , one of the jewels holds the spring," Lillian commented, "but which one, and in what way?"

"We'll have to eliminate, I fancy," I said, and using the magnifying glass to guide me, I pressed each separate jewel with the tip of my finger, and when that failed, I took the head of a pin and inserted it carefully beneath each jewel, pressing each from every possible angle.

And then at last I felt a ruby—the largest of all the stones, against which I had pressed a dozen times—move ever so slightly. I did not need to increase the pressure. The center disk whose existence we had guessed snapped open, revealing a cavity beneath, small, of course, but sufficiently large to hold a tiny packet of the thinnest paper manufactured.

"Ah-h!" Lillian breathed, and as I looked across at her I saw her eyes gleaming with excitement and something more—the zest of the chase which is always her, and which makes her so successful in her government work.

With infinite pains I extricated the tiny packet of paper, while Lillian rose and shut the windows that no possible draught might blow it out of our reach.

Then laying the locket to one side and covering the table with a white cloth, I unfolded the tiny pad of paper, memorizing as I did so the exact manner in which it had been folded. When it was all spread out before me, and I saw the queer black marks with which it was covered, I could not repress a gasping little cry."

"Lillian!" I exclaimed. "Look at these! Don't you remember?"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator From New York

One Human Scourge That Is Dying Hard

"CAPTAIN OF THE MEN OF DEATH." This is the term Bunyan applied to dread tuberculosis. No better name could be found to describe this terrible scourge. Statisticians say that one-eighth of all the deaths among humans are caused by it.

DR. COPELAND

We have marched forward in our war against this captain. But in the United States and Canada, in spite of our progress, about one-tenth of the deaths are due to tuberculosis.

Domestic animals fall victim to it. Chicken and other fowl, pigs, but particularly the cattle which supply us with meat and milk, are commonly affected.

Fortunately for the human family, cooking destroys the germ and germ-products of tuberculosis. Official inspection makes it improbable that meat from infected animals will reach the homes. But should it be sold by some mischance, its preparation in cooking does away with the danger of infesting the family.

But when we consider milk, we are dealing with another question. Infected milk is responsible for many cases of tuberculosis in children.

It has been estimated by competent students of the problem that 10 per cent of the deaths from this disease are due to what we call "bovine tuberculosis"—that is, from tuberculosis transmitted through the milk of the cow.

When this form of the disease attacks children, the bones and joints are more likely to be involved than the lungs. Sad deformities and loss of future earning power are the results of this affliction.

When you visit a hospital given over to bone and joint diseases you are in an institution where the majority of the patients are paying the penalty of consuming milk from tubercular cows. These little folks are the innocent victims of a preventable accident.

No duty imposed on a parent is more imperative than the obligation to supply pure milk. Without it the danger of tuberculosis is very, very great.

The public is awakening to the importance of giving the disabled child the proper sort of treatment. Dotting the country are institutions dedicated to the care of little folks who are in the active or quiet stages of this dread disease.

It isn't difficult to control the symptoms of tuberculosis provided it is recognized early, and particularly if it is possible to regulate the diet and daily life of the patient. Institutional care of a sick child, in most instances certainly, is superior to the average care in a private home.

There can be no doubt that the crippled and deformed child is better off in a special hospital, unless the home is sufficiently well-to-do to provide the nursing care and necessary apparatus. The well-endowed hospitals and homes for children of this type afford better chances for restoration to normal, or at least to usefulness.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, August 28.

THE astral forces for this day seem to combine for petty anxieties, annoyances and indiscretions which may have regrettable denouments. These affect the personal as well as the business relations. With precaution concerning writings and with moderation in speech and action there may be benefits of an unexpected nature or a sudden opportunity for a welcome change or journey.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of beneficial change, but they are enjoined to protect themselves from trouble through writings, false reports or through personal indiscretions or indulgences.

A child born on this day may require early training and discipline against irritability and stubbornness as well as in probity and responsibility of word and act. It may have some original talent.

Even in a hero's heart discretion is the better part.—CHURCHILL.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WE MODERNS

MANY a kiss that a woman remembers with a thrill is one that a man merely recalls with a smile.

A good cocktail makes a feast out of a poor dinner—and a good telephone lie makes an "alibi" out of a poor excuse.

Marriage is something about which most men are curious at twenty, critical at thirty, and cynical at forty.

HELEN ROWLAND

Just because a man wears motor-goggles is no sign that he owns the car; and just because a girl wears an engagement ring is no sign that she will get the man all signed up at the altar.

* * *

A modern man doesn't ask much of a woman. All he wants is "just a sweet, old-fashioned girl," with the pep of the flapper, all the economic independence of the bachelor girl, and all the fascination and sophistication of Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Just a sweet little—miracle!

Some husbands make good, reliable "watch-dogs," but awfully poor "house-pets."

* * *

Many men manage to sail along safely on the placid waters of bachelorhood for years, and then run into the fog-bank of a dangerous love affair or are wrecked on the rock of a foolish marriage, when they are past forty.

* * *

Eternal youth is undying zest in the Great Gamble called Life. Until a woman learns to look upon life not as a dispensation, but as a great adventure, and on work, not as a sentence at hard labor, but as a fascinating game, she will never squeeze all the joy out of them that a man does, or delight in them as God intended.

* * *

All the legal ties that bind a man to a woman cannot be guaranteed to hold against another woman's tug at his heart-strings.

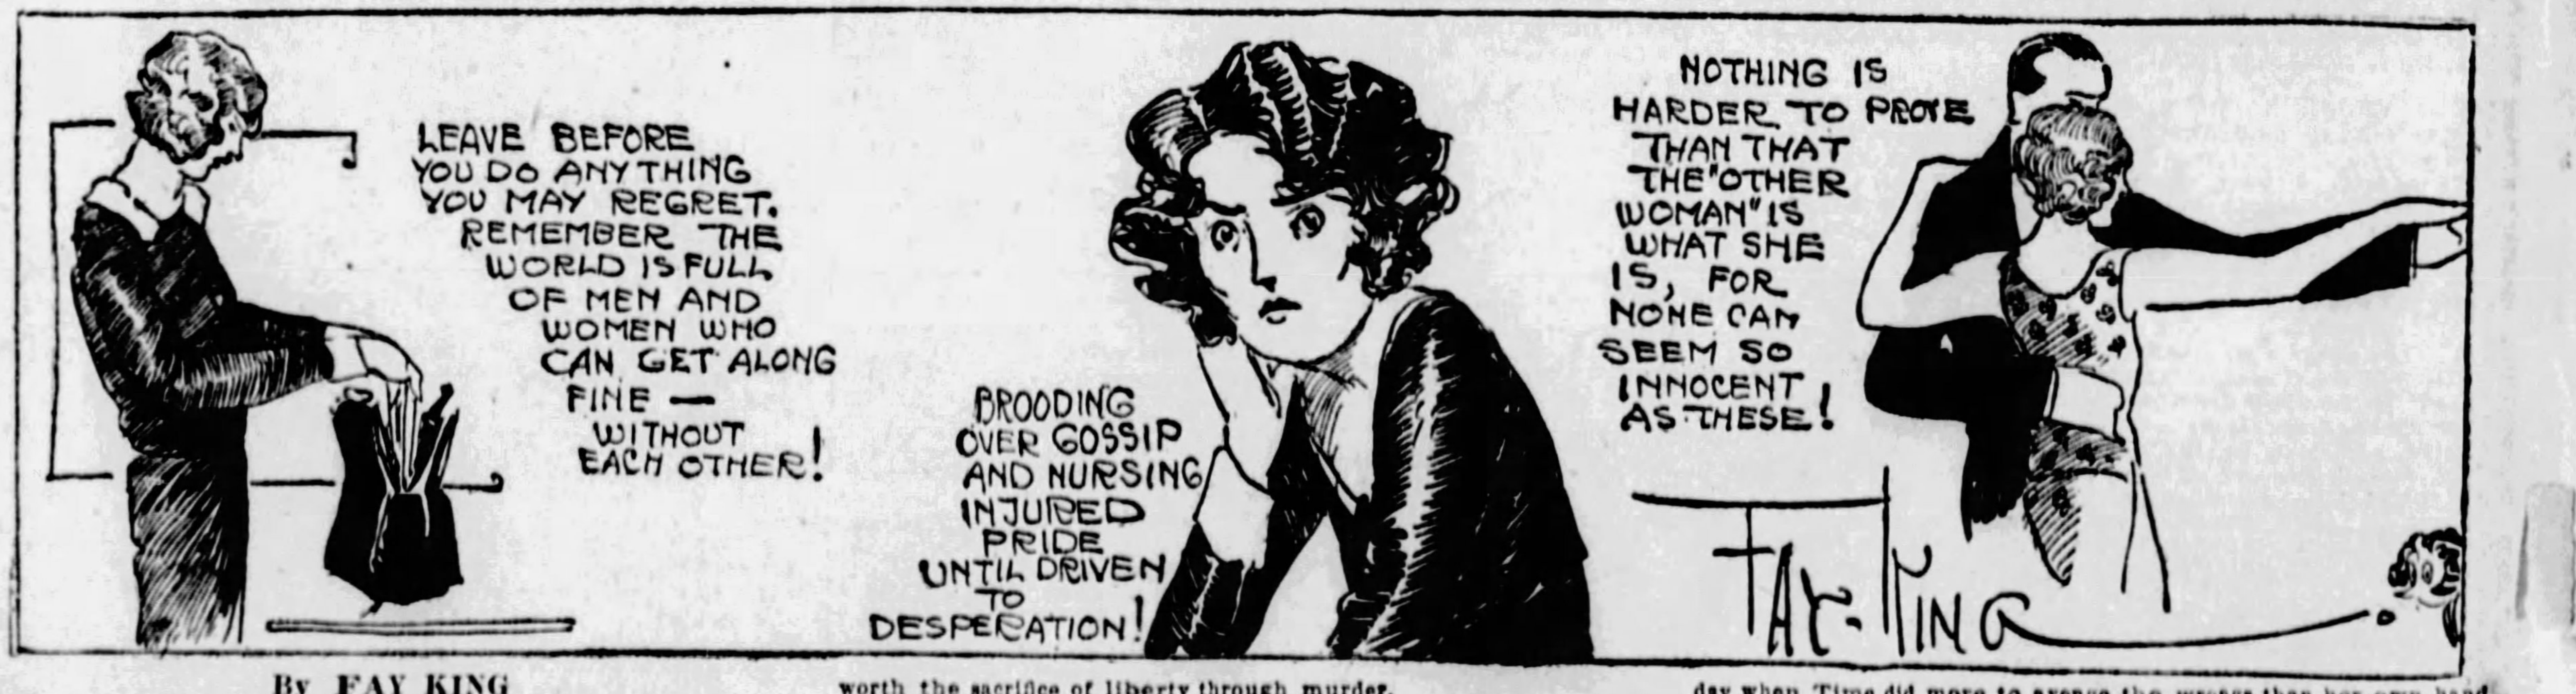
Deserting Husbands Deserve Only to Be Forgotten, Says Fay King



LEAVE BEFORE YOU DO ANYTHING YOU MAY REGRET. REMEMBER THE WORLD IS FULL OF MEN AND WOMEN WHO CAN GET ALONG FINE — WITHOUT EACH OTHER!
BROODING OVER GOSSIP AND NURSING INJURED PRIDE UNTIL DRIVEN TO DESPERATION!
NOTHING IS HARDER TO PROVE THAN THAT THE "OTHER WOMAN" IS WHAT SHE IS, FOR NONE CAN SEEM SO INNOCENT AS THESE!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

SO LONG as the world is full of leech women, who attach themselves to another woman's husband, wives must control themselves. They must realize that no husband, no "other woman" is worth the sacrifice of liberty through murder.

The wise wife keeps silent, ignores gossip, or goes away to forget, and get a divorce!

Wounded pride has driven many wives to desperation. But many other wiser wives have walked away, and lived to see the day when Time did more to avenge the wrongs than her own hand could have done.

The "other woman" often soon finds herself in the role "neglected wife." The husbands often suffer more through their own mistake.

Foreigners To Threaten

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—One of the most cosmopolitan fields ever to start in a national doubles championship which opens today at the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill. For the first time in recent years foreign invaders enter competition in this event strong favorites to overcome the American defenders.

William T. Tilden, II, who was entered in the tournament paired with Francis T. Hunter, will not be able to aid in warding off the Australian and French menace because of his recent suspension by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Tilden will be present in the capacity of journalist only.

Outstanding in the ranks of the younger players who will assume defense of the title are George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago, and John F. Hennessey, Indianapolis, members of the American Davis cup team, and John Van Ryn, Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., winners of the Longwood doubles and other tournaments.

Chief among the foreign stars are Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, of France, winners of the Wimbledon double championship and Gerald L. Patterson and Jack Hawkes, of Australia, who defeated Tilden and Hunter, as well as Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste, of France, in the English tournament.

The teams of Lott and Hennessey and Van Ryn and Allison are seeded one-two in the draw. The third seeded American team is the old-time combination of R. N. Williams II, of Philadelphia, and Watson M. SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—Ten 3-year-olds have been named to start in the Hambletonian Stake, richest race in the trotting world, today at the New York State Fair. The stake has a value of $66,226.25 and of this $40,549.71 will go to the winner.

The entries are Aubrey, Bogalusa The Great, Scotland, Gailworthy, Spencer, Etta Volo, Guy Abee, Otzinachson, The Virginia Senator and Coburn.

HERMAN LAYNE BREAKS ARM

The Indianapolis club, leading in the race for the American Association flag, today faced a crisis as the result of events of the week-end.

Herman Layne, former Pirate outfielder, who has been starring for the Hoosiers in the drive for the flag, sustained a broken arm in an accident of Saturday's game. About the same time Adam Comorosky left the team to rejoin the Pirates.

Layne, Comorosky and Wid Mathews were regarded as one of the best outfields to be found anywhere outside the majors. The play of the three ball hawks had much to do with the lofty position held by the Hoosiers.

In order to help their friends in Indianapolis, the Pittsburgh officials have sent Outfielder Worth from their Columbia farm to the Hoosiers.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Lucas Holds Bucs Runless 25 Straight Innings in Beating Them Four Times—Damaging Defeat for Pirates, As All Rivals Except Giants Gain—Comorosky Praised by Association Critics.

NO OTHER pitcher in the National League has been a bigger obstacle in the path of the Pittsburgh team this season, nor has done more damage to their pennant chances, than Red Lucas of the Reds.

Ervin Brame

When the Buc rally in the ninth inning yesterday fell one run short of tying the score and a very important game ended in a defeat, it marked the fourth time that Lucas has beaten the Bushmen in 1928 out of the same number of starts.

AND even that record does not show fully how remarkably effective Red has been against Father Pitt's entry, for in the two of the four games the Corsairs were shut out, and in the entire quintet of contests they scored a total of only five runs.

THE high spot in Lucas' work during that string of performances was the feat of holding the Pirates runless for 25 consecutive innings. He beat them 1 to 0 on April 14, 3 to 2 on May 2, 1 to 0 on August 11, and 4 to 3 yesterday. The two runs credited to the Bucs on May 20 were scored in the first inning, and they did not cross the plate against Lucas until the ninth frame of yesterday's engagement, 25 horsecollars in a row intervening.

LUCAS' fourth triumph gave the Reds the honors in the season's series with the locals, as they have now won 12 games against only seven for Pittsburgh, making it impossible for the Rovers to even the count in the three events that remain to be played.

It is the only year's series the Pirates have lost to date, but they have lost 11 games to St. Louis and could get only a tie with the Cards even if they were to win all seven games they have yet to play with the Redbirds.

YESTERDAY'S defeat was the first suffered by Pitcher Ervin Brame in a game started by himself. He had lost only one game previously, and that was dropped while he was serving as a relief hurler. From the viewpoint of the Pirates' standing in the pennant race, Brame's first unsuccessful start was made at a most inopportune time, as all of their flag rivals except the Giants, who lost the sixth game of their last seven, were winning meanwhile and the day's results gave the Bucs a severe setback. At that it was only the fourteenth game lost by the Pirates in their last 49 played, and the fact that they went down fighting gives hope that they will come right back and resume their winning march.

PITTSBURGH will have another real star now that Outfielder Adam Comorosky has returned to the Pirates from Indianapolis, according to critics around the American Association circuit.

Adam Comorosky

Comorosky's individual work has been the main factor in keeping the Hoosiers in first place in the Association's close pennant fight, and he is pronounced a better ball player than Ernest Orsatti, who has been knocking in most of the Cardinals' runs since Bill McKechnie recalled him from Minneapolis.

DISCUSSING Comorosky, the St. Paul "Pioneer Press" says:

"Baseball fans of St. Paul who attended the four-game series with Indianapolis saw Adam Comorosky, the Indians' sensational rightfielder, put up one of the greatest exhibitions of all-around playing they have had the pleasure to watch in many moons. This youngster did everything in the books and did everything well.

"Here is a natural hitter who puts more wood behind the ball than any other player in the American Association. He hits to all fields and is one of the hardest players in the league to fool. He is likely to strike out on a low curve one time and then on his next trip to the plate hit a similar pitch to rightfield or right center for extra bases.

"DEFENSIVELY, Comorosky is just as big a star as he is on the attack. He roams to his right or left with ease and can come in fast or go backward without any trouble. In the first game the fans saw him at his best in the field when he robbed Bruno Haas of an extra base blow by going into the corner of the American Association scoreboard and pull down his drive. He almost grabbed Haas' drive off the fence in the eighth inning of the second game and would have had Eli Funk's drive in the eighth inning of the first game if the fence had been back a foot or so. Comorosky is a sweet ball player, if there ever was one, and he is going to make a name for himself in the big league. He is the property of the Pittsburgh club and he is a cinch to become a regular with the Pirates next year. The best boost we can give Comorosky is to assert that he is a better ball player than Ernie Orsatti, now of the Cards. The Minneapolis scribes are likely to take objection to this claim, but if they could see Comorosky perform on a big field, we feel certain they would vote the same way."

EDOUARD HOREMANS, world champion at 18.2 balkline billiards, is preparing to leave Belgium for this country early in September. Under the rules governing the 18.2 championship trophy, the titleholder is required to defend the crown twice each season, and according to the schedule, Horemans will be called upon to meet a challenger in about four months.

Willie Hoppe

Willie Hoppe is the next eligible challenger, and it is believed he will favor December for the match as the time that will interfere least with his three-cushion activities.

AT PRESENT Hoppe appears to be giving little attention to balkline. On the contrary he has planned a long period of operations in the angle game. His vacation just ended, Willie today will start a week of three-cushion play in New York, meeting all comers, 50 to 40, among the best amateurs and semi-professionals in the Metropolitan district.

Next week Hoppe will play one special match and then he will go to the Pacific Coast to meet Johnny Layton in a long series of three-cushion tests that will last eight weeks, returning to start competition in the annual race of the Ameri-

HELEN MAY WIN TWO TENNIS TITLES

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—Helen Wills, national singles titleholder, and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, of Boston, queen of the courts as long ago as 1909, have advanced to the final round of doubles competition in the national women's tennis championships at Forest Hills Stadium, their opponents in the finals will be Mrs. L. A. Harper and Edith Cross, of San Francisco.

Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman crushed the team of Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin and Penelope Anderson in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2, in the semi-finals yesterday. Only a sensational upset brought Mrs. Harper and Miss Cross into the finals for their semi-final victory was scored at the expense of the well-favored team of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, of Santa Monica, Cal., and Helen Jacobs, of Santa Barbara, Cal., 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Wills now is faced with the opportunity of winning two championships. She meets Miss Jacobs in the singles finals at 4 o'clock this afternoon and later in the day participates in the doubles finals.

AMERICAN SOCCER LEAGUE ORGANIZED

The second meeting of the American Soccer League was held yesterday afternoon and while the roster was not closed six clubs posted forfeits for the season's operations. Heidelberg, Dunlevy, German Spart, Westinghouse, Overbrook and National Tube. The return of Dunlevy is a good break for local soccer as the upriver outfit adds a punch to the loop.

Jimmy Agnue was elected president, Henry Peel vice-president, and Davy Herron secretary-treasurer. The opening games will be played September 9, with Overbrook Westinghouse, German Sport at Dunlevy, and Heidelberg at National Tube. The charter will be kept open for two more clubs to try and make it an eight-club league.

REAL SHOCK

The failure of Vic Aldridge to "produce" for the Giants came as a real shock to John McGraw and as a surprise to National League fans. Aldridge's failure stands out in bold relief because he was the value which the Pirates last winter gave McGraw in exchange for Burleigh Grimes. Grimes is leading the league in victories — waivers have been asked on Aldridge.

LEE ON RETIRED LIST

At the start of the 1927 campaign, Lee Meadows was one of the most consistent winners on the Corsair slab staff—and today he is on the voluntary retired list. The Bucco bosses asked waivers on Lee last week and he was placed on the retired list today. Lee developed a sore arm during the spring training work and has not been able to regain winning form.

Stanley Coveleskie, veteran spitballer, has been given his unconditional release after many years of brilliant work in the American League. Stanley was let go to make room for Tom Zachary, another veteran on whom the Senators asked waivers.

Charley Paddock Hangs Up His Track Shoes

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(INS.)—Charley Paddock, of the American Olympic team, is in New York today, but, according to a statement made by the runner, he is through with the track.

Paddock, who arrived from Southampton on the Caronia last night, said that he has been running for 15 years and now others could take the field.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

IN ATLANTIC CITY, last week, they held their annual boxing show for the benefit of the Milk and Ice Fund and attracted a crowd of some 8,000 persons with an all-star card of bouts headed by Harry Blitman, the Philadelphia southpaw featherweight, who is matched to box Benny Bass, September 10, in a bout for which he is guaranteed $25,000, with Bass working on a percentage. Not long ago Bass lost to Tony Canzoneri in a bout for the championship and recently Blitman handed Canzoneri a one-sided trimming in a non-championship bout in Philadelphia. As a result of these two bouts, the Bass-Blitman affair is one of the greatest "naturals" that Philadelphia has had in years, and it should draw a whale of a crowd.

ALL of this is preliminary to the fact that a former Pittsburgher, Myer Saul, was matchmaker for the Atlantic City benefit program, and, with the task before him of having to ask the boxers to work gratis or for mere expenses, put together a corking card. Blitman's opponent was Jack Daley of Atlantic City. They were scheduled for eight rounds, but Blitman ended it in the third round, when Daley's seconds tossed in the towel. They thought a lot of Daley at the resort up to this time, and his manager had wagered that he would go the limit with the hard-hitting uncrowned champion of the featherweights and give him a good fight.

Phil Tobias of New York, who has a draw with Willie Davies, boxed Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, twice victor over Davies, in the eight-round semi-final, a fine battle; Pat Haley and Mickey Martell, Philadelphia middleweight rivals, battled eight slugging rounds, with Haley getting the decision; Emery Cabana defeated Harry (Kid) Decker of Philadelphia in six rounds, and Eddie Reid of New York defeated Harry Scott, Negro pride of Atlantic City, in the six-round opener. In addition to this list of bouts, the fans listened in before the show got under way on Gov. Al Smith's acceptance speech through loud speakers installed at the ringside. Tickets sold up to $10.

VACATIONING at Atlantic City, I had an opportunity to take in the show and liked the manner

Meadows Retired By Bucs

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

LEE MEADOWS, veteran Pirate pitcher, who has been almost a total loss to the club this season, today practically severed his connection with the club.

The Pittsburgh management announced that Meadows, at his own request, had been put on the voluntary retired list of the club.

Provided his arm regains its strength, Meadows will make application to be placed back on the roster next season, the local officials declared.

The spectacled star developed something akin to neuritis in his pitching forearm during the spring training period. Although he was treated by various doctors the troublesome spot refused to heal, although he did get sufficient relief to pitch and win a full ball game several weeks ago.

Caddies In Meet Today

BULLETIN.

John Meyers of South Mills paced the wave of early starters to the nine-holes mark in the caddy tournament at the Pittsburgh Field Club today. Meyers reached the turn in 42. Pete Bruno and G. Renkus of Oakmont and Milan Radonevich of South Hills were tied at 43.

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE caddies will usurp local golf spotlights today as some five score of them clash in the annual Western Pennsylvania team caddy tournament at the Pittsburgh Field Club. The lads will play 18 holes at medal play. Competition is scheduled to start at noon, with the entries teeing off in threesomes.

S. A. R. EVENT TOMORROW

The state championship of the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution will be held at the St. Clair Country Club tomorrow. Col. Franklin Blackstone of the Ambridge Country Club is chairman of the golf committee in charge of the event.

Luncheon will precede the tournament and an elaborate dinner and a program of entertainment and speech-makink will follow it. Play will be at 18 holes medal, under handicap, and will begin around 1 o'clock.

FATHERS AND SONS TO PLAY

Fathers and sons of the Highland Country Club will participate in a tournament over the Highland links tomorrow. A large field is expected to play. Samuel M. Parks, Sr. and his son, Sam, who will play in the National amateur championship next week, are the reigning favorites to win.

MONTOUR TITLE AT STAKE

C. A. Cooper and Roger D. McMahon will play for the championship of the Montour Heights Country Club one day this week. They reached the final round in the first flight only after surviving some stiff competition, according to Cecil Barbet, pro there. Eight flights competed, several of which have yet to reach the final round.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 27.—Either Fred Fussell or Carmen Hill will oppose the veteran Adolph Luque as the Pirates seek to even the short series with the Reds here this afternoon. The Bucs, who lost a chance to slip into fourth place by losing to the Reds yesterday, are anxious to start on a new winning streak.

Red Lucas, who has exercised a mastery over the Buccos for the past two seasons threatened to blank them for the second time in a row as he turned in a 4-to-3 win yesterday. He had the Corsairs shut out until the last inning, when the Bucs rallied and punched over three runs, Pie Traynor's double being the big wallop of the rally, it driving across two runs, which Lucas had put on the sacks with free passes. Brickell then singled and scored Pie, but with the tying run on base, Bartell fanned.

Had the Bucs taken the Reds, who, it must be admitted, are playing fast, fine ball at present, they would have squeezed into the first division ahead of the Hendricksmen by the narrow margin of one point. But it was not to be. A victory today for the Pirates will leave the two teams standing just as they did before they opened hostilities.

BRAME HIT HARD

Brame went the entire route for the Buccos and was blistered for 14 hits but the tall flinger kept them sufficiently scattered so that the final score was not greater than it was.

The Pirates finished the day with eight hits to their credit off Lucas, who has been a decided puzzle to them for two seasons. On his last appearance against the Bucs in Pittsburgh he shut them out and let them down with two hits. It appeared that he was going to administer the second successive coat of whitewash on Sunday and that he failed to obtain a shutout was due to his temporary loss of control in the ninth inning which, mixed with two hits, were good for three runs.

The Reds' double-play machine was in operation and they turned in three of the dual killings, bringing their total for the season to 159. One of these double plays was fatal to the Pirates' chances. The first one staged by the Reds was in the

WITH Ollie Carnegie, Heinie Boll, Elmer Kestner, Fritz Goldberg and Gables hitting the ball hard, the Beaver Falls Elks had little difficulty winning over the St. Johns nine at Sullivan Field yesterday. This slugging aggregation hit young Matoney hard and the other succeeding pitchers fared the same way.

Matoney is a good young player, but pitting him against a team like the Elks does not give him a chance.

GUS OTEY flashed his stuff in a business-like way on Saturday against the Reineckers and now the McKees Rocks outfit will probably travel to Cincinnati in the National Federation series representing Pittsburgh.

Under the rules, Manager Jednak can take along another pitcher outside of his own roster. The Rox mentor should take advantage of that rule, for pitchers will be needed in the Redland town.

THE Reliance Life outfit will swing into the final week with a visit to Pleasant Valley this evening. Tomorrow evening the Reineckers will be met at Reliance Field. On Wednesday the Thomas Club will be met at Dean Field. Thursday a trip will be made to McKees Rocks to meet Stowe Civics. On Friday the North Side Civics will be met at the Salt Works, and on Sunday a league game will be played with St. Johns at Sullivan Field.

DAVIES, the leading hitter on the club, left on Saturday to return to Fredericktown to coach the high school football team. Blasing will go to second and Manager Ollie Cochrane will cover the hot sack. It is quite possible that the veteran Harry Fowler will be used during the week to try to make a good showing in the windup. Saturday is open abroad for a club needing a first-class attraction.

THIS evening at Dean Field, the North Bessemer Community Club will play the Thomas Club a return game. Manager Elder expects to bring to Bloomfield the majority of the players that won the Class A tourney with Universal last fall.

Manager Zapps has Joos ready to use, while the Bessemer boys have not announced their pitching selection.

TOMORROW evening at Dean Field the crucial game of the City League will be staged when Hermes-Grove, the leaders, meet Stowe Civics. "Pop" Geer realizes that should this go to the Dairymen the City League race is over. All Tommy Carson has to do to meet Book Shoe in the post-season eliminations is defeat the Rox entry tomorrow evening and the second half race is over.

CARSON got a bad break on Saturday when Sammy Leon was hit on the pitching arm in the Verona game. Either Snee or Cabby will go to the mound, possibly Snee. Gardner or Miller will work for Stowe.

Ex-Champs To Compete

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—It will be a battle of kings and former kings when Bobby Jones, the Atlanta lawyer, seeks his fourth national amateur golf championship at the Braeburn Country Club, West Newton, Mass., a fortnight hence.

One hundred and fifty-six golfers, cream of amateur talent in the United States, Canada and Great Britain are entered, it is revealed by announcement of pairings for the qualifying rounds, September 10 and 11.

No fewer than eight former National amateur champions, the present and a former British titleholder, and the current Canadian ruler are in the field against Jones, who will attempt to repeat his victories of 1924-25-27.

EX-CHAMPS ENTERED.

Among the former National champions are George von Elm, of Detroit, 1926; Max Marston, 1923; Jess Sweetser, 1922; Jess Guilford, 1921; Chick Evans, 1920 and 1916; S. Davidson Herron, 1919, and William C. Fownes, Jr., 1910. Thus with one exception, every National titleholder since 1914 is trying it again. The one exception is Bob Gardner, who won in 1915.

A British eight-man threat is led by the present amateur king of that country, T. P. Perkins, and the man he succeeded, Dr. William Tweddell. With them will be the other members of the British Walker cup team: T. A. Torrance, E. F. Storey, Maj. C. O. Hezlet, J. B. Beck, R. H. Hardman, and W. L. Hope.

Canada is well represented but her chief hope is C. Ross Somerville, of Toronto, winner of the Canadian championship this year and last.

Perhaps the chief interest among the challengers rests in the attempted comeback of Sweetser. He was taken seriously ill shortly after he won the British title in 1926, and has not appeared in National competition since.

But the imposing list of amateur stars is by no means complete with the mention of champions and former champions. There are a number who have yet to win their first National amateur title but who must be reckoned with.

Watts Gunn, Atlanta companion of the defending champion, will be back hoping for better luck than he had in 1925 when he lost to Jones in the final round at Pittsburgh, 8 and 7. Then there's Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, of Minneapolis; Frank Dolp, of Alderwood, Ore., who won the Western Amateur championship last week; Maurice McCarthy, of Georgetown, intercollegiate titleholder; George Voight, North and South champion, and a host of others who must not be counted out until the last ball has found the cup.

first inning when Adams and L. Waner led off with singles, P. Waner forced Lloyd and then Grantham smacked into the double massacre.

SCORE IN FIFTH

The Reds broke through the defense of the Pirates in the fifth inning when they scored a run on successive singles by Walker, Kelly and Allen. In the sixth they added another on singles by Ford and Lucas and a sacrifice fly by Critz. The third run transpired when Allen led off with a triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dressen. Ensuing singles by Picinich, Ford and Lucas were wasted.

The Reds made their final run in the eighth when Dressen led off with a double, went to third on an out and registered on Ford's sacrifice fly.

Meanwhile Lucas had been pitching superb ball. In five innings only one Buc reached second and he was Bartell, who doubled in the fifth. In the seventh frame with one out Grantham and Traynor singled but Brickell crashed into a double play and halted the feeble rally.

In the ninth Lucas wobbled. He walked Adams, first up, then L. Waner and P. Waner went out on fairly easy chances. Lucas, however did not have the range and he walked Grantham. Traynor's ripping double scored Adams, and Brickell sent Grantham and Pie in with a single. Lucas then bore down and fanned Bartell. It was a fast and brilliant game and was executed without an error.

STAHLMAN TO RACE IN BUTLER EVENT

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 27.—Lafe Stahlman, veteran Western Pennsylvania pilot, who was the winner in the initial 100-mile race at the New Kensington speedway and has been triumphant in conquests of speed frequently on the local course and others in the tri-state district, has decided to cast his fortunes in the holiday 50-mile, 100-lap, gasoline derby on the track here Labor Day.

Three Locals To Play in Amateur

Three Pittsburgh district golfers will compete in the National Amateur championship at the Brea Burn Country Club, West Newton, Mass., beginning next Monday. They are William C. Fownes, Jr., former amateur champion, and Raymond L. Babcock, both of Oakmont, and Samuel M. Parks, Jr., of Highland, former Western Pennsylvania junior champion.

Fownes will start at 2:30 p. m. Monday and 9:45 a. m. Tuesday, playing with D. J. Armstrong of Aurora, Ill.; Parks begins on Monday at 2:55 and on Tuesday at 9:30, competing with Frank K. English of Country Club of Waterbury; Babcock, stroking with Joseph M. Batchelor of Salem, Mass., plays at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and 9:20 Tuesday morning.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

in which it was put over. Saul and his companions did a fine job of it.

Saul, by the way, is doing very well at the shore. He runs the Edison Hotel and always is on the lookout to play the role of host to old Pittsburgh friends, although he has been away from here for more than eight years. In addition, he is in the real estate business, and a brother, Harry, is one of the leading dentists of the town. Their parents have moved there. Myer is happily married, a respected and successful business man and a "big shot" in the sports field.

SAUL'S love for sports comes naturally. He was a football star at Peabody High School and captained the 1916 eleven. Among his teammates at the East End school were George McLaren, later fullback star at Pitt; Red Silberstein, who later starred at Bucknell; Bob Waddell, who also went to Bucknell and now is the extremely capable head coach at Carnegie Tech; Harry Robb, who starred at Penn State; Leonard Hilty, who became an all-America tackle at Pitt, and Phil Marshall, a star at Carnegie Tech. Saul played left end, and McLaren, who recently visited with him at Atlantic City, was a speedy halfback, whose later forte for spectacular line-plunging at Pitt was not even dreamed of in those Peabody days.

AFTER leaving Peabody, Saul went in for newspaper work on the old Gazette Times, for which he was employed in the sports department, working first with Dick Guy and then with the writer. In 1919, he went to Atlantic City on his vacation, met the present Mrs. Saul and decided to remain there. What was Pittsburgh's loss was Atlantic City's gain.

Myer has the newspaperman's proverbial eye for news. When Luis Firpo was training at Atlantic City for his bout with Jack Dempsey, Myer had him stopping at his hotel as his guest and thereby attracted a great deal of business. He tells an amusing story of an incident that occurred during this time. He had a parrot in the lobby of the hotel that could utter only a few notes. One sounded like a shrill "Feer-po!" One day a representative of a news service came into the hotel with Firpo just as the parrot screamed his "Feer-po!" Myer hastened to inform the scribe that the parrot always recognized the big fellow and greeted him in this manner and the story went around the world. It was a master business stroke.

WHILE he had little opposition in Daley, Blitman demonstrated in his benefit bout that he has all the accoutrements of a champion in the making. He is confident, strong and carries himself with an air of superiority that sweeps his opponents relentlessly before him. He is fast and graceful for a southpaw and hammers home his left in Lew Tendler fashion. Philadelphia newspapermen at the ringside who saw him drub Canzoneri told me that this latter bout was a veritable slaughter and predicted a certain victory for him over Bass. They said Canzoneri could not fathom Harry's southpaw style and just barely survived the punishment that was meted out to him over the 10-round route.

YANKEES WIN IN GERMANY

BOCHUN, Germany, Aug. 27.—A new world shot putting record was established today when Hirschfield, the big German athlete, tossed the heavy ball approximately 52 feet 8 inches.

Hirschfield was one of the entrants in the international meet being staged here and he long has been one of the chief competitors of Johnny Kuck, the husky California lad, who made a new world record at the Olympic games at Amsterdam.

Americans showed well in the games today.

Spencer, of the United States, won the 400-meter race in 47.8 seconds. F. Morgan Taylor, also of the United States, was second.

can Three-Cushion League, which will get under way about the middle of November.

TEX RICKARD'S expressed confidence that the million-dollar gate will come back in Fightdom is not shared by boxing experts, in view of Gene Tunney's failure to draw more than $625,00 last month.

General conditions after the second meeting of Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, with the retirement of Dempsey, indicated that there would be no more seven-figure gates in a hurry, and the signs in that direction have since become more convincing.

THE prevailing opinion in the East is that there will not be another million-dollar intake until there is another Jack Dempsey to draw it.

That would appear to indicate a long, long wait, as fighter-showman combinations such as Dempsey was are not developed in every generation.

ONE veteran expresses the opinion that Dempsey's color, fighting ability and drawing power were the sole reasons for the success of four shows in pulling receipts ranging from $1,117,404 at the Dempsey-Firpo thriller to $2,658,660 at the second Tunney-Dempsey clash. In some quarters the big gates were attributed to Rickard's skillful directing, clever build-ups and shrewd ballyhooing through various publicity channels, but it is contended that since Tunney could draw only $625,000 with Heeney it must have been Dempsey rather than Tex who attracted the previous great throngs and enormous receipts.

WAYNESBURG TO START WORK SEPTEMBER 3

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 27.—Fifty huskies are expected to report at the Yellow Jacket camp for football practice here on September 3. These men have been at work at some kind of manual labor during the summer vacation months and it is expected that the camp this year will be one of the best ever held by the local school.

Prospects for this season's grid activities could not be spoken of as exceptionally bright at present, however, on account of the inexperienced material and unfamiliarity of the new system of coaching which will be instituted by Coach Frank Wolfe.

LOCAL BOY ON GRID STAFF AT PENN STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 27.—Preliminary work for the approaching Lion football season began here today when John K. McClements of 152 S. Fairmount avenue, Pittsburgh, one of the three first assistant student managers, returned to help make preparations for the pre-schedule training period which will begin on Saturday with the return of the grid candidates.

The practice sessions which Coach Hugo Bezdek will institute next week will no doubt keep the managerial force busy from daylight to dark throughout the autumn. Approximately 50 grid aspirants are expected to report on Saturday.

RICHARDS BEATEN

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—Karel Kozeluh, of Czechoslovakia, yesterday defeated Vincent Richards, of the United States, in the first of a series of matches for the professional lawn tennis championship. The scores were 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

DUQUESNE RING SHOW OFF

There will be no boxing show in the open-air arena at the Duquesne Steel baseball park this week, as planned, Promoter Jules Beck announced today. He called off Thursday night's show when he received word from Johnstown that Ike McFowler, the Negro heavyweight of that city, who was to be one of the principals in the main bout, had been seriously injured in an automobile accident over the week-end and could not appear. Beck already is at work on plans for a big show next week.

Tuffy Griffiths, of Sioux City, Ia., who knocked out Tony Marullo in the first round at Chicago last Thursday night, boxes K. O. White in the same city tonight.

Jack Dempsey's new show, "The Big Fight," under the auspices of David Belasco, opens at Jamaica, N. Y., tonight.

Leo Flynn has taken over the management of Young Stribling.

George Perotta and Young Firpo, middleweights, box the main bout at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, tonight. Jack McFarland, of Wilkinsburg, and Frankie Rio, of Cleveland, will mix in the semi-final.

A card of six amateur bouts will be staged by the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., in its open-air arena on the North Side tonight.

TRADERS DRILL TODAY

The Tenth Ward Traders football team will hold its first practice session this evening at Garfield Park. Coach Koepke will run the boys through a few light drills and become acquainted with the players. It is expected that 35 or 40 players will turn out to make a bid for positions. Any junior lightweight teams desiring to book the Traders as an early attraction call Hiland 9604 between 6 and 8 p. m. or write Joseph Gebhart, 419 N. Winebiddle avenue, Pittsburgh.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Steel Firms Make New Markets for Products. Metal Replaces Wood in Home Building.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE steel industry is learning to sell itself. It is going after new markets instead of waiting for the markets to walk in the door.

In the old days the steel companies thought of themselves as selling a bulk commodity. Steel was like sugar. Everyone knew what it was for. One maker's sugar or steel was the same as that of the next. They just charged so much a pound. Competition consisted principally in shaving the price. Just as no one has tried to find new ways of using sugar the steel industry did little to find new markets. The initiative in development work was left to the consumer.

BUT today there is a new trend. Manufacturers of other products have broadened their outlets. Some, such as the brass makers, have been taking business away from steel. The steel industry is becoming conscious of the sales development work that has been left undone. Sporadic attempts to secure a foothold in new fields are being replaced with steadier and more persistent efforts.

FIREPROOF steel construction is not new in large buildings, but in recent years there has been a definite effort to apply steel to smaller buildings and residences. Fairly satisfactory progress has been made. Metal lath has come into common use. Steel sash is finding better demand. Light weight steel beams have appeared on the market.

The fireproof house at a moderately low cost has at last been made possible by combining the steel frame with brick and tile construction.

A DEMONSTRATION house is now under construction in Mission Hills, Mt. Lebanon. It has reached an interesting stage. The entire steel framing has just been completed. Not a single piece of wood has been required from the foundation to the roof rafters. Standard steel frame angle units which are designed to enable the builders to combine them into all of the parts that make up a frame house such as sills, girts, studs, partitions and rafters have been used.

THE steel is fabricated by the Steel Frame House Company, of Pittsburgh, and is being built under the direction of Lyon and Taylor, architects, of New York, L. Brandt, housing engineer, and L. O. Maines Cotruction Company, contractors.

Next week Steel Tex, supplied by the National Steel Fabric Company, a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, will be applied after which the house will be finished with reinforced brick.

JUNIOR BEAMS, the recently developed lightweight steel section being made by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, were extensively used in the construction of the frame.

IMPROVEMENT in the volume of coal shipments has been reflected in the earnings of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company. About half of this carriers' business normally consists of coal, although other types of business have been rapidly developed.

THE strike cut deeply into traffic, but a sharp improvement is now apparent. July gross operating revenue was $370,743, compared with $257,465 in July, 1927. Net income in July of this year was $188,980, compared with $74,419 a year ago. Net for the first seven months of this year of $1,054,015 was slightly less than in the corresponding period of 1927, when $1,076,063 was reported.

THE way is being prepared for the financing of Pittsburgh and West Virginia's extension to Connellsville by the calling of a special meeting of stockholders on October 24 to ratify a proposed increase in the funded debt from $3,832,000 to $50,000,000. An initial $10,000,000 of these bonds will be sold as soon as permission is secured from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Influenced by pressure of hedging sales against newly harvested wheat, prices averaged lower early today. Unfavorable weather in Canada, however, tended to restrict offerings. Opening ⅛c off to ⅛c up, wheat later held near to the initial limits. Corn, oats and provisions developed firmness, with corn starting ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, sagging a little more and subsequently scoring general gains.

At noon wheat was ⅛c to ¼c lower with corn ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, oats unchanged to ⅛c up and provisions down 5c.

Emphasizing the bearish effect today of hedging sales of wheat in connection with the harvest movement northwest, advices the harvest movement northwest, advices [illegible] crop prospects were auspicious. On the other hand, rains in the Canadian prairie provinces likely to hamper the progress of the harvest there acted more or less as an offset, and so likewise did Liverpool reports that Canadian crop estimates would be reduced.

Statements from official sources that farmers who are in a position to hold back wheat should do so, attracted much notice today among wheat traders here.

HIGHER MONEY HALTS STOCK ROCKETING

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—Marking up of the call money rate from 7 to 7½ per cent, coincident with the calling of about $40,000,000 in bank loans, temporarily checked the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market. Waves of selling swept through the market and carried more than a score of the popular issues down 2 to 4 points below Saturday's final quotations, but buying support was quickly supplied and new leaders brought forward by pool operators.

Outside of the credit situation, chief outside interest centered in the publication of a series of July railroad earnings reports, most of which made favorable comparison with the same month of last year. Western roads made the best showing, due to the heavy movement of agricultural products. The American Woolen Company, one of the few large industrial corporations to make a report during the day, showed another large deficit in the first half of 1928.

With the outside public apparently in a buying mood, operators for the rise whirled up their favorites, forcing "shorts" to cover with large losses in several issues. National Biscuit was bid up 8 points and Loose Wiles lifted 5 to a new high record at 64⅝. Electric Auto Lite extended its gain of 4 points by touching a new top at 93¾ and Mack Trucks, American International Continental Insurance and Abraham & Straus sold 3 or 4 points higher.

In the noon break, Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck and Purity Baking dropped 4 points and Radio, National Cash Register, Wright and Jewel Tea fell back 3 points or more. All rallied from the low levels.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today with no sales reported and prices quoted at 4.14c for spots duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened unchanged to 2 points lower under September liquidation and selling of the distant deliveries by houses with European connections, apparently on the disappointing showing of the London market and the continued inactivity in the spot market. With tomorrow first notice day for September deliveries, there was considerable evening up and exchanging from that month to later positions, but there was enough covering and trade buying to absorb the offerings. Prices held fairly steady and at midday were 1 to 2 points net lower. Nothing definite has been announced in regard to the Cuban restriction plan, but it is generally believed that it will not affect the coming crop. In some quarters it is intimated that restrictions governing the exportation of remaining present crop supplies may be modified. An announcement is expected in the trade today.

There were no changes in the refined situation, with prices quoted at 5.65 for fine granulated by all refiners. Withdrawals on old contract continue of liberal proportions, and some are said to be running out, leading to expectations of an increased new buying movement.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 8 to 13 points in response to a relatively easy Liverpool cables. There may have been a little buying on an unfavorable view of weather conditions reported in the belt over Sunday, but the failure of bullish features in weather and crop reports to inspire a more active demand, was evidently a disappointment to holders of contracts. Offerings increased shortly after the opening, with the market showing net losses of about 18 to 22 points by the end of the first half hour. December sold off to 18.51 and March to 18.52, but trading became quiet on the decline and prices steadied a few points on covering. Private cables said that there have been continental selling and hedging in the Liverpool market, but that the demand for cotton cloth was fairly well sustained with a fair business pending.

The early decline carried the market off to 18.51c for December, or to net losses of 18 to 22 points on the general list. Offerings were not heavy, however, and the market steadied after the publication of the forecast for thunder showers over the greater portion of the south. December rallied to 18.61c, or about 10 points from the lowest, but the demand failed to broaden and the improvement was not fully maintained. At midday trading was quiet, with the active months showing net declines of 12 to 16 points.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Tight Money Disturbs Market.

Stocks started the week with a spirited upturn, but increasing tightness in the money market halted the advance around midday and the entire list churned uncertainly. Reactions were the rule, but it was evident that many stocks were receiving good support and several of them started upward again in the early afternoon. The tone, however, was one of considerable irregularity. Call money was unchanged on the opening at 7 per cent, but moved upward as the supply of demand funds was substantially depleted by heavy withdrawals. The recent demonstrations on the upside have derived considerable assistance from the dissipation of nervousness over the possibility of political disturbances. During the past week Mr. Hoover has made great progress in placating the farm element, while the policies of the Democratic party were clearly outlined in Governor Smith's address. With the nation convinced that there is nothing in the program of either party to unsettle business conditions, bullish operations were resumed with renewed confidence. Earnings reports for the first six months from industrial corporations are fulfilling optimistic predictions, and the outlook for the final half of the year is growing increasingly promising. Moreover, the successive declines in brokers' loans the past two weeks indicate that investors and speculators alike have plenty of funds to absorb attractive offerings in the bond market, and carry stocks on bountiful margins.

Central Buys Engines.

The New York Central Railroad has purchased 30 of the latest type of passenger locomotives and 25 heavy freight locomotives from the American Locomotive Company for about $5,000,000.

Receipt of this order explains the recent lease of life taken by American Locomotive on the market. The stock had been dropping almost continuously for a year or more due to the fact that roads have not been buying engines. While one order does not make a good year, any more than a single swallow a summer, this contract, the largest placed by any road this year, will go a considerable way towards helping Locomotive to make an improved showing in the second half. Besides, placing of such an order easily may be the first sign of a definite turn in the equipment market.

Fewer Cars on Order.

Class I railroads in the first seven months this year installed 35,854 freight cars, according to American Railway Association. Compared with the corresponding period last year, this was a decrease of 9,289, and a decrease of 30,404 compared with the corresponding period of 1926. Freight cars on order on August 1 this year totaled 14,830, compared with 19,314 cars on the same date last year and 29,102 on August 1, 1926. In July the railroads installed 6,137 freight cars compared with 7,102 in July, last year. Locomotives placed in service during the first seven months in 1928 totaled 881, a decrease of 314 compared with the corresponding period last year and a decrease of 407 compared with the same 1926 period. Locomotives on order on August 1, 1928, totaled 73, compared with 209 on the same date in 1927 and 517 on August 1, 1926. Locomotives installed in July numbered 116, compared with 155 placed in service in July, 1927. These figures as to freight cars and locomotives include new and leased equipment.

Locomotive Exports.

Locomotive exports showed further decrease in June, amounted to 16 engines valued at $142,261 to compare with 22 engines valued at $343,053 in June, 1927. April was the only month in the first half year to exceed the corresponding month of 1927 in number of engines shipped. For the half year exports numbered 75 locomotives valued at $1,024,772 to compare with 144 engines values at $3,940,932 in the first half of 1927.

Frisco for July.

Total operating revenue of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway for the first seven months of 1928 was $47,300,035, says a statement made public here tonight by the office of the comptroller. A decrease of $3,194,735 under the revenue of the similar period of 1927 was shown. Operating expenses were $34,350,777, or $2,252,339 less than for the first seven months of 1927. July 1928 operating revenue was $7,132,523, an increase of $19,195 over July 1927, while operating expenses were $5,107,143, or $139,839 less than in the same month of 1927.

Coast Oil Outlook Better.

The oil industry in California today is in a very satisfactory condition and is showing constant improvement, said James A. Talbot, president of Richfield Oil Company. Gasoline production and consumption, he predicted, would break all records in California. The recent advances of 1 to 59 cents a barrel in crude prices, Mr. Talbot believes, will soon be followed by an increase in gasoline prices. He said that Richfield's record production is holding up well and that the company's refineries are now operating at capacity. Mr. Talbot said that Richfield's offer to non-voting holders of Pan-American Western stock is being very favorably received.

Sales for the first 32 weeks of 1928 were $9,522,239 as compared with $8,738,400 for the like period in 1927. For these weeks the average number of routes in 1927 was 1,091, and in 1928, 1,102.

Chicago District Employment.

Declines in industrial employment were manifest in July, the Chicago Federal Reserve District's Survey of Business Conditions says in attributing the decline to vacation periods, inventory taking and a reduction of the number of workers as well as in the amount of payrolls. Losses of six-tenths of 1 per cent in men and 6.1 per cent in pay were reported for the period June 15 to July 15 by plants with an employment of 342,000 workers, the Survey points out. The heaviest decline was in the metals and metal products group, where the reductions amounted to 4.1 and 8.9 per cent, respectively.

Franklin Getting Texas Oil.

The National Transit Company is transporting 3,400 barrels of Texas oil daily from Philadelphia to Franklin for refining in a new westbound movement of crude oil started less than a month ago. This compares with a movement of 2,500 barrels daily a short time ago. Increased demand for Bradford crude oil in the Oil City and Warren refining districts is causing an increased amount of traffic in the Bradford to Oil City divisions of the National Transit Company lines.

Tidal Osage Oil.

Tidal Osage Oil directors meet tomorrow and there is a feeling that directors will authorize the regular quarterly distribution, due largely to the strong financial position of the company. The quarterly dividend payment entailes only $315,850, while profit and loss surplus June 30 was $6,233,864. Working capital of $2,397,578 was the highest level on record, and compares with $1,773,090 at the end of 1927. Of this cash totaled $66,851 against $42,408 and accounts due from affiliated companies — practically cash — $2,008,870, against $1,562,348. There is no floating or funded debt, while ratio of current assets to liabilities June 30 was almost 20 to 1.

Atch to Get Orient.

The state railroad commission in a communication sent today to the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington recommended that application of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad to acquire control of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad, which has 563 miles in Texas, be granted. The Orient road enters Texas near Chillicothe and runs southwesterly through the western portion of the state to Alpine. The territory is largely one without other railroad facilities, but which is rich in agricultural possibilities and mineral resources. Continued operation of the road, the recommendation to the Interstate Commerce Commission said, "is a vital necessity to present needs as well as future growth of this section." The sale is proposed as a means of solving a long series of misfortune and losses in operation which have resulted in operation of the line by a receiver much of the time.

Rubber Outlook Brighter.

According to the United Business Service of Boston, the drastic declines in crude rubber and tire prices have combined to make the first half of 1928 one of the most unprofitable periods which the rubber industry has ever experienced. A careful analysis of the future outlook, however, indicates that a return to normal earning power in 1929 is probable. Consumption of tires continues on an up-trend, and production thus for this year has exceeded a year ago in every month with the exception of April. In spite of the unfavorable factors, total volume of business in 1928 is expected to make a new yearly record. The decline in earning power, then, has been caused by the drop in crude rubber prices, and not by a decrease in volume of business.

Pool Remains in Force.

Although most of the losses incurred by the American Rubber Pool have been allocated to the companies comprising the pool's membership the pool itself remains in force contrary to recently published reports of its dissolution. It is believed that there will be no action taken on the dissolution of the pool until after the lifting of the Stevenson restriction plan November 1. If the Dutch and British decide to let the law of supply and demand control the price situation thereafter, it is probable the pool will dissolve. If, however, the principal rubber growers of the world decide to formulate a selling pool, or to influence the price of the commodity in any other artificial manner, the American pool will doubtless continue to function.

Ford Above 5,000 Daily.

Ford Motor Company to date has produced 300,000 of the new model A cars and trucks. Domestic assembly is averaging around 4,000 units a day, and including Canadian production of 500 units daily and output of other foreign assembly branches, aggregate production of the new Ford models now probably exceeds 5,000 units a day. Employment at the Detroit Ford plants is at record high, totaling 120,293, against 115,837 on June 28, 1928, the last previously published figure and with the 1926 peak of 110,000 during production of the model T. After discontinuing production of Model T last summer Ford employment dropped to a low point of 52,000.

Carrier Showings Improve.

Railroad earnings for July so far received, while pretty well mixed in appearance, show a decided tendency toward recovery. As expected, the western roads make the best exhibits, generally reporting gains in both gross and net. In some cases, for example Northern Pacific, a substantial gain in gross revenues accompanied a decline in net, evidently because of special preparations for handling a heavy traffic in the late summer and fall. The improvement in operating results during July is being carried further this month and August statements seem likely to be better on the whole than those for July. If the present tendency of traffic volume continues, one of the first results will be that the carriers will spend more liberally on maintenance than they have been doing for the past 8 or 10 months. They may also expand somewhat the year-end orders for equipment and track materials.

Mobilizing Canada's Credit.

Canadian chartered banks are mobilizing millions of dollars in preparation for moving the country's record-breaking wheat crop to market. At the peak probably not less than $200,000,000 will be required, according to S. H. Logan, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. "Precautions have been taken on a broader scale this year than ever before," said Mr. Logan, "to provide for bringing the crop to market and to insure prompt payment for farmers. Steps have been taken to prevent diversion of the country's funds into channels which would create a shortage of credit for the marketing of the wheat crop with the damage such a diversion would cause to the economic organization of the country."

Lead Price Raised Again.

The American Smelting and Refining Company today advanced the price of lead from 6.30 to 6.40 cents a pound. This is the second 10-point advance in a week. American Smelting and Refining Company's first-half earnings are good and will be around $11 a share on the 609,980 shares of common stock outstanding after bond interest, depreciation, depletion, federal taxes and preferred dividends, for this will be approximately the same as in the first half of 1927, when earnings on the common stock were $11.08 a share. Outlook for the second half year is encouraging. Price of copper should average materially higher in the second half year than the first. Silver price, if anything, will be somewhat higher, and lead and zinc prices also will be somewhat higher than in the first six months of the year.

Later he was appointed pastor at Derry, Pa., and St. Malachy Church, Pittsburgh. Since 1911 he had been pastor of St. Frances de Sales Church. The Prince of Wales

His Story

Mr. Hansell across the Pont Neuf to the left bank of the Seine and towards the Latin quarter, where the Prince loved to buy little etchings and pieces of silver of quaint design, which he still collects to this day.

It was in France that the Prince became introduced to the motor car, and found in it a never-ending pleasure.

The Marquis' two young sons, Comte Francois and Comte Jacques, both about the Prince's age, relieved the French visit of any hint of restraint, and at occasional fetes, the jeunesse dore of Paris were present to make the Prince feel at home.

The three young men "did" the round of Parisian social events thoroughly and a firm bond of friendship sprang up between them. The young aristocrats assisted their father to perfect their guest's French and the Marquis accompanied the Prince to the theater.

The present Prince of Wales' "diary" is filled with duties as strenuous as any of the Ministers of the Crown or leaders of Parliament, indeed, the Prince has been rightly called "the first spokesman of the Empire."

In the peculiar position which he holds, the Prince can perform certain public duties in a manner peculiar to himself which gives the greatest satisfaction to all concerned and only the Prince can give that touch of dignity to a public function without straining the ties of democracy.

It needed such a man as the Prince of Wales, for instance, to visit the French fleet to prove that our relations with France were of the most amiable description. The French government realized this and were not satisfied until le duc de Chester had visited their Fleet. Accordingly, on May 21, 1912, the prince arrived at Toulon and was received by Admiral Boue de Lapeyrer and other distinguished French naval officers. The young Prince was conveyed to the Battleship Danton.

Impresses French People

He was given the honor of issuing the order "weigh the anchor" and for a time was allowed to direct the maneuvers.

The same night, the Prince slept on board the Danton. Next day he enjoyed a short trip in a French submarine.

During this visit to the Fleet, the French people received a glimpse of the Prince's real nature—his sympathies towards the troubles and misfortune of others. Whilst maneuvers were in progress, a French sailor fell overboard. He was quickly rescued, but the young Prince not satisfied only with the official report that he was quite uninjured asked for the man to be sent to him, and after inquiring as to his welfare congratulated him on his narrow escape.

While he was studying at No. 12 the Avenue du Bois, there passed the funeral procession of Duc Georges of Leuchtenberg. Prince Edward came out on to the balcony and stood bareheaded while the procession filed down the avenue. This act of courtesy was not lost upon the sympathetic French people.

The Prince spent many happy hours at the Marquis' country-seat, Chateau de Bevilliers, at Breteuil. Parties were arranged for young Edward's amusement in order to give as many people as possible the opportunity of meeting the Earl of Chester—England's future King.

In June the Prince gained his official majority and returned to London for his birthday celebrations. The King of Spain honored the occasion by conferring upon him the Order of the Golden Fleece.

While he was enjoying his coming-of-age celebrations, the French government addressed through the Foreign Office a request that the Prince of Wales should be allowed to have conferred upon him the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor—the highest and most coveted of French decorations.

On the occasion of the Prince's farewell visit to the Elysee, before concluding his stay in France, the President, M. Falliers, conferred upon him the coveted Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, handing him the case containing the insignia of the decorations. A moment later, Mde. Falliers pinned a rosette in his buttonhole—the "undress" order of membership.

Desired as Honor Guest

When it became known that le jeune prince de Galles was in Paris every aristocrat and notability in Paris desired to have the honor of entertaining His Royal Highness. But King George had wisely decreed that his son was not to take advantage of any private invitations except those which the Marquis considered desirable.

While at the Marquis' country seat, a party was arranged by the Duc de Luynes to take place in his chateau nearby, in honor of the young Prince. Numerous guests were invited, all of whom were sanctioned by the Marquis de Breteuil. A dance floor was erected on the lawn and every lady present looked forward to dancing with the royal guest of honor.

It is an indication of the difference of the time when His Royal Highness danced scarcely at all and showed little enjoyment in it then, while today his favorite indoor amusement is dancing, and he prefers syncopated melody and light music to the more heavy operatic tunes. On this occasion instead of dancing, the young Prince chatted with his host, for once casting aside his usual English reserve, and talked about himself. He confessed that his tastes were simple—that he loved all forms of sport.

He spoke of his love for the sea, and acknowledged his delight at the enthusiastic manner in which the French people had received him.

There was no fear of praise going to the young Prince's head. With characteristic modesty his first fear was that he might prove inferior to those who hailed him so joyously. With wonderful self-possession he conversed with other guests who came up to him, though he admitted to the Marquis that he was very conscious of his shortcomings as a conversationalist.

With happy memories of the French people the Prince left France on August 25, 1912, to return to his normal work and studies. The French visit revealed and developed a very human side of the Prince's character—it was a first shadowing of the Prince that was slowly growing to be the tremendously popular figure that he is today.

DIVIDEND TALK LIFTS FIREPROOF PREFERRED

Trading was moderately active and prices were steady at the opening of the new week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Such changes as did occur in the early market were of the smallest fractions.

The active issue of the forenoon dealings was Arkansas Gas, which changed hands at 2⅞ for the common and 7¼ for the preferred. Several blocks of 100 shares or more were handled in the first hour, but the supply and demand seemed rather evenly balanced and there was no change in the quotations.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass opened the market at 255, unchanged. Demand for Pittsburgh Plate is steady around these figures, but there has been no urgency noted in the buying. Regular plate glass business is improving, according to trade reports, and the company is busily engaged in the manufacture of safety glass for automobiles from which it is expected to derive substantial profits this year.

National Fireproofing preferred responded to the cautious buying which has been going on in the stock for the last 10 days or so. In today's market a few odd-lot trades lifted the price to 19, the highest of the current movement and an advance of 1½ points over last week's low. Rumors of favorable dividend action were heard in connection with the recent strength in the stock.

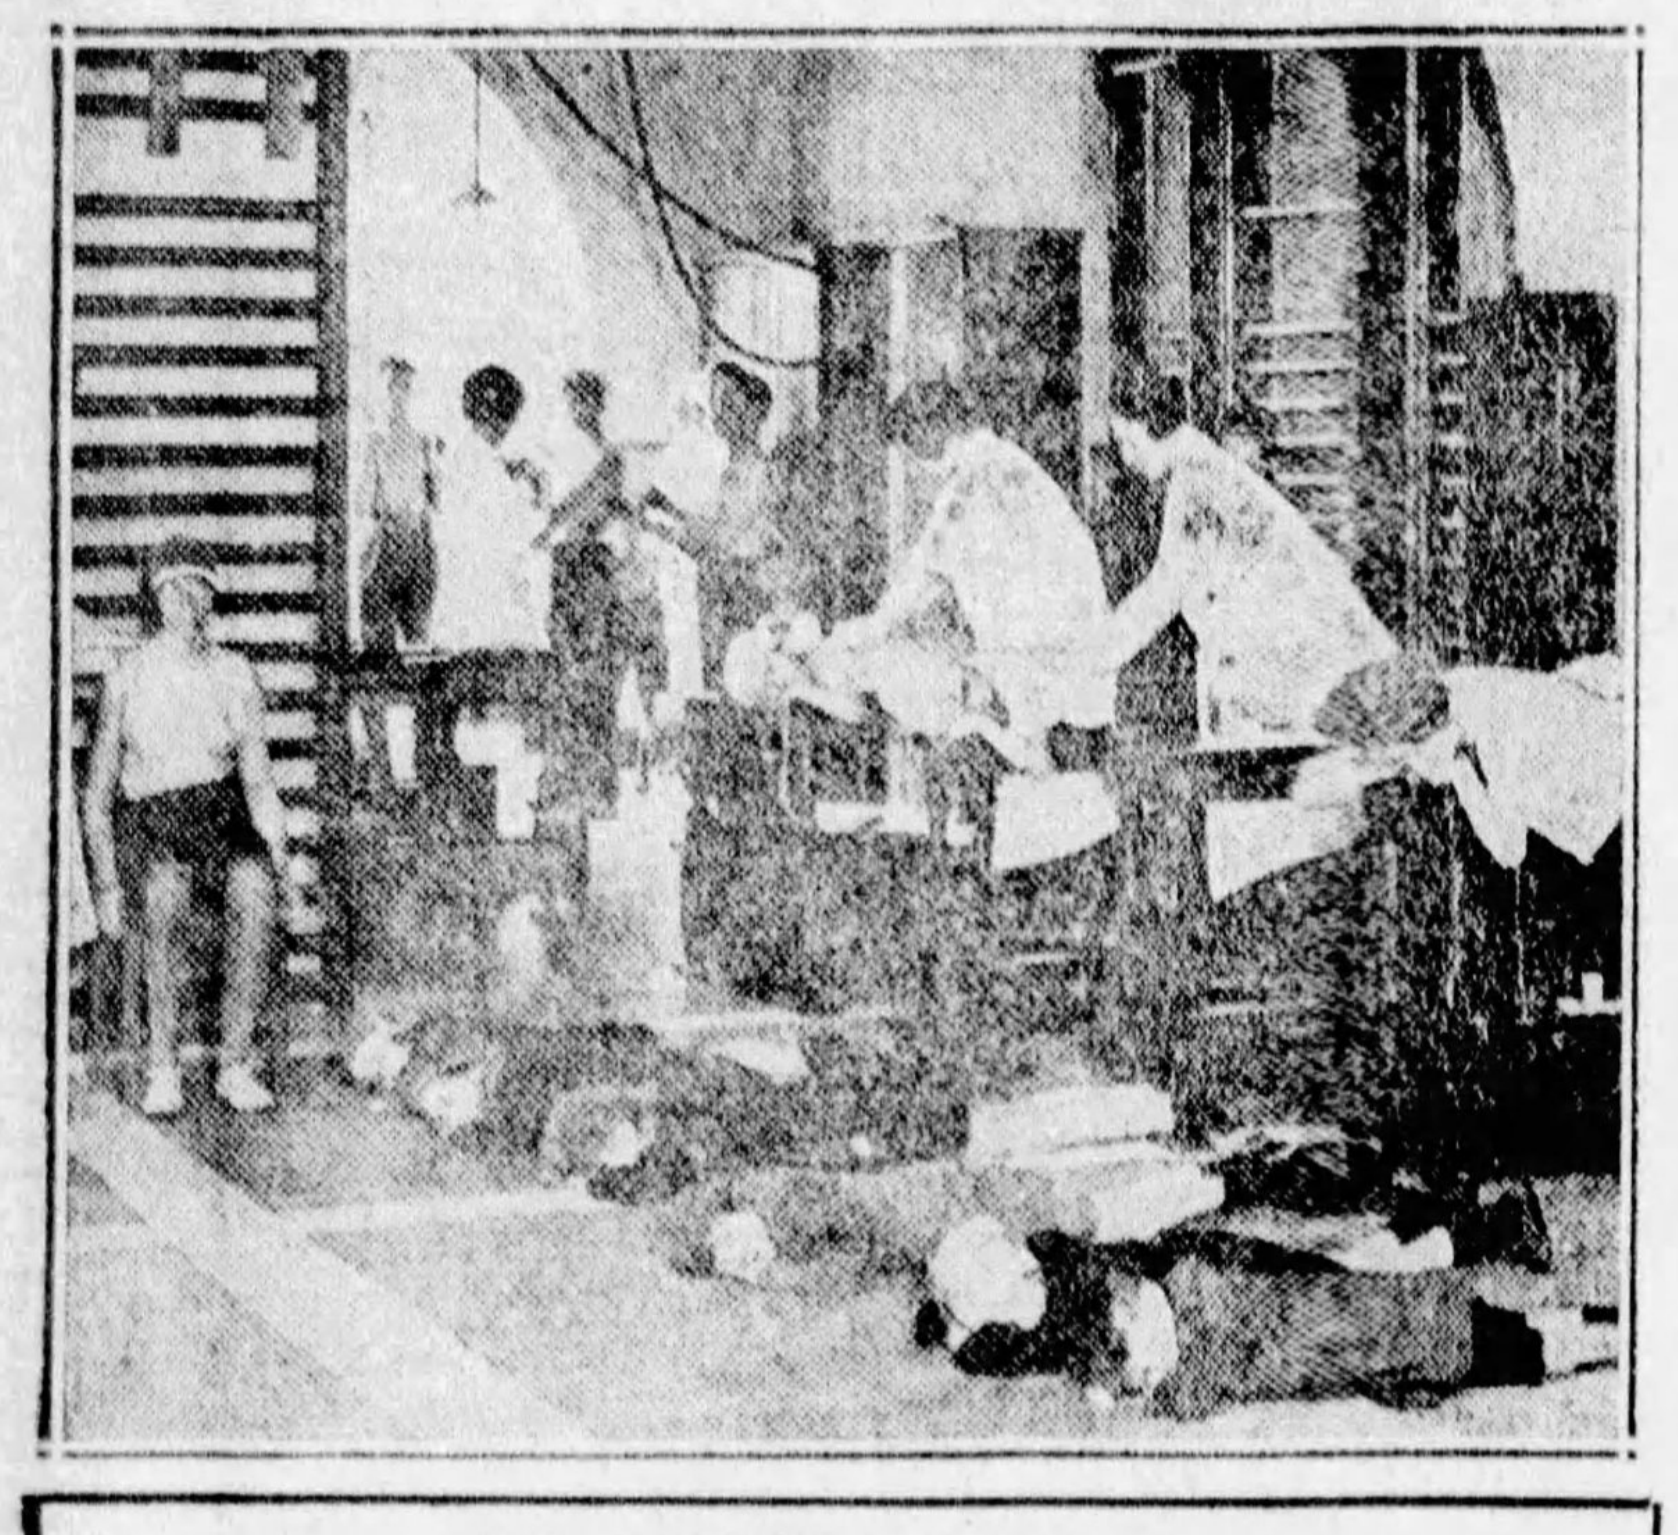
Music as a Cure

Especially Important for Children.



CONVALESCING TO MUSIC.

Disease is partly physical, partly A STATE OF MIND.

Some believe that it is ONLY a state of mind. Some believe that it is purely physical. Both are mistaken.

Man is a spirit in a physical body. The body affects the spirit, the spirit affects the body.

These pictures show the interiors of two hospitals in which music is used to help THE SPIRIT TO CURE THE BODY.

The upper picture shows the interior of Guy's Hospital in London. Nurses are giving children massages to music. In the rear, boys are going through rhythmic exercises, to the same music.

Music STIMULATES the mind, creates a happy psychological or spiritual condition.

And the cure is easier.

CONCERT FOR TUBERCULAR PATIENTS.

The second picture, made in New York's Seaview Hospital for Tuberculosis, shows patients listening to a concert given in the ward. You read, "It has been found that soft, cheerful music has a marked effect on tubercular cases. Driving away the bogies of depression, homesickness and worry by musical vibrations, music greatly aids the doctors' efforts."

Music stimulates the mind in its THINKING, and stimulates men in AMBITIOUS effort, in WAR and in Peace.

It is in many instances more powerful than drugs or the surgeon's knife.

But he is in danger who fails to recognize the importance of "pure science," or to NEGLECT drugs or the surgeon when either is needed.

Just a Glance of Sunlight

The Farmer Would Like Such a Gleam.

There is a little gleam of sunshine for our deserving railroads. The Interstate Commerce Commission says the government must pay them $15,000,000 a year more for carrying mails, and must refund to the railroads $45,000,000 more for having paid the road too little since 1925.

Railroads that carry the mail must know how Moses and his friends felt when the manna began to fall and they ate the first mouthful of it. Sixty million dollars worth of manna is not a thing to scorn.

The farmer as he reads about that will probably wish that his farm were a railroad, or at least that the farmers' organizations knew how to act like railroads and get money as railroads do.

Imagination Is the Thing

Other Things Are Secondary.

Dr. Brownwell, literary adviser of Scribner & Co. for many years, and a good author on his own account, leaves behind him an excellent criticism of modern writing: "Everybody is clever nowadays, but our cleverness is apt to stop short of imagination."

Writing without IMAGINATION is like music without emotion or painting without color. And lack of imagination is the curse of modernism. If it had imagination it could not be so foolish.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Shakespeare

THE effort to find out who "Shakespeare" really was goes on intermittently, but unpromisingly. The latest addition to the Stratford legend comes from France, where an ingenious professor of the College de France, Abel Lefranc, has put forth the hypothesis that the author of "Hamlet" (more pertinently to M. Lefranc's theme, the author of "Love's Labors Lost") instead of passing his whole life in England, lived long in France, besides visiting other European countries.

It is affirmed that M. Lefranc is about to publish, in three volumes, an exhibit of the evidence on which he founds his theory that the great dramatist lived intimately at the court of Navarre in the time of the famous Marguerite de Valois. Those who have read the soi-disant revelations that Mrs. Gallup and others have persuaded themselves that they can decipher in the cryptograms said to be contained both in the Shakespearean plays and in Francis Bacon's works, will at once recall the fact that Bacon is there represented as describing this very intimacy at the court of Navarre as an important part of his own experience when he lived in France—as it is known, historically, that he did.

It could, then, be said in reply to M. Lefranc's hypothesis that though his facts may be correct he has mistaken his man—it was not William Shakespeare, the ignorant and untraveled rustic of Stratford, who was intimate with court life in France, but Francis Bacon, the greatest scholar and courtier of his age. The Baconians could make effective use of this in defending their hypothesis that Bacon was the real author of the plays.

Nothing seems able to down the doubt hanging over the personality of the author of those works, so matchless in their verbal power, though their claim to philosophical depth may lie more open to cavil. They dress the philosophy of common sense in royal robes of diction, and throw about it an atmosphere of transforming magic. The same fascination envelops the verbal expression given in the plays of the common human thoughts and emotions and the everyday impressions of nature.

No one can form a valuable opinion about the controversy over the personality and actual history of the man we knew as Shakespeare without an unprejudiced reading of the evidence and the arguments produced by the many writers on both sides, combined with a thoughtful study of the plays and poems themselves. There are enormous "vested interests" in the Shakespeare legend as it stands, which should be considered by every sincere investigator of the question, for they color everything that is said on the subject in the "orthodox" circles, which include the majority of teachers of literature in the schools. The inertia of "learning" is prodigious.

M. Lefranc's revelations, if he has any, are not in the least necessary in order to convince a thoughtful reader of any of the great Shakespearian tragedies, comedies or histories, that the man who wrote them was in his own person familiarly acquainted with the manners of courts, kings and queens, as well as with the life and thoughts of his time, and the life and thoughts of classic times recorded in history and literature; and that he had, moreover, a highly cultivated mind, abreast with the best intellects and the best achievements of his day. The unfortunate thing is that the most authentic information that scholars have been able to discover concerning the William Shakespeare of Stratford is inconsistent with this picture.

Law and Humanity

IF we include Madison, Monroe and Roosevelt, who studied law but did not practice it, 23 of our 29 Presidents have been lawyers.

This year is the third time since Washington left office that the American people, in voting for a President, have not had a chance to vote for a lawyer or law student. The two earlier times were when Greeley opposed Grant and when the two Ohio editors, Harding and Cox, competed.

The New York Law Review, in reminding us of these facts, seems a bit puzzled. We suspect that the people will welcome the change.

The law is a great and honorable profession but there is a greater. It is to know mankind. The combination of lawyer and humanist is ideal, but if you can't get it, then a humanist offers the better recommendation. He can hire good lawyers.

Neglected Husbands

IT is hard for a self-respecting man, who wants to present a good appearance and create a good impression for his better half, to be obliged to appear at work with rents in his clothing and other evidences of her neglect.

Every man wants the world to think well of his wife.

He himself enjoys enumerating her good qualities, irrespective of what he thinks of her.

It is embarrassing to stand by and hear other men brag about the thrift, the industry and the skill of wives in home matters, when their own personal appearance is such that they cannot join in the same kind of conversation.

Every wife should have pride enough in her husband to do her part in making him appear as well as possible.

The man who feels neglected by his wife cannot work up to the highest standards of which he is capable.

It is easy for such a man to be shiftless.

He figures that his wife does not do her share, so why exert himself?

This is not a sensible way to look at the matter, but it is human.

As a wife, are you meeting your obligations?

If you are not, you are neglecting the most important job it is possible for you to hold.

TELL me, I beg you,
What is hope for?
Hope makes toil lighter,
Hope gilds each star!
Many would weary,
Days would be long,
Save for hope's promise,
Life's sweetest song.
There is but little
Wisdom that's mine,
This much I thirst for;
Faith seems divine.
Why must men cherish
Such viewless things?
All souls would perish
Without faith's wings!
Tell me, I beg you,
What is love's worth?
Love lifts men nearer
Heaven from earth!

Great Passages from the Bible

The Parable of the Talents

(Matthew 25; 14-30)

FOR the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods.

And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey.

Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.

And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.

But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money.

After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them.

And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.

His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beside them.

His lord said unto him, Well done ,good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou has not strawed:

And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine.

His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed:

Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.

And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

WELL, I heard a story about a woman by the name of Jones that was a great bargain-hunter. She was always bragging about how she could get things three cents cheaper or two cents cheaper than other women. She did, too. She watched the sale ads mighty careful, and she never watched any signs that had even dollars marked on them.

One day this lady was walking across a golf links, and somebody was just teeing off. She was right in line for a biff on the bean.

Well, this golfer was scared he was going to kill her, and he yelled "Fore!" just as loud as he could.

She didn't seem to hear, and he yelled it again. The ball was getting mighty close to a vital spot behind the lady's ear, but still she didn't notice the "Fore!"

Then the golfer recognized her as Mrs. Jones, and he had just one more chance, so he yelled "Three ninety-seven!"

She looked around just in time to let the ball whizz past.

O.O. McINTYRE

In Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Chicago has a slap-bang touch and go. Even a New Yorker geared to high-pressure buckitty-buckitty is sparked up by the contagion of the hustle and quickens his step. There is a feeling something might go off behind you—and often it does.

It would be all right with me if the police here would use another make of whistles. The doleful and long drawn out whoo-ee-e-e is like the sob of a sighing wind. Or the eerie hoot of a swamp owl in the dead of night. They are a trifle too funereal for the city's robust manner.

George Rector joined me for breakfast, and I permitted him to pay the check—a quaint old Belgian custom. The man to whom nobodies as well as somebodies genuflected at the silken ropes of Rector's famous old Broadway cafe is now writing cook books, syndicating juicy recipes and giving lectures on domestic science at halls of learning. Chicago is his birthplace.

When his old friends drop into town he delights in corraling them in his apartment to fashion a currie or some other culinary yum yum that has sent the name of Rector ringing around the world. He is one of the glamorous figures of Broadway's picturesque past.

Chicago would scarcely be Chicago without its blind long-haired fiddler who for years entrusted himself to traffic dangers with an alert fox terrier as his cicerone. A year or so ago a motor car dispatched the faithful pet's soul to the Elysian fields, but the old fiddler is carrying on.

"I miss him so," he said, as sightless eyes stared into the blackness of his eternal night. Few take so much pride in their city as the Chicago taxi driver. Here they are mostly strapping young huskies who deserted midwest plow handles to go off to the city.

They thrill to piloting the stranger about and pointing out the sights. Mine said his name was Absolem, but added a touch of democracy with the concession I might call him just "Ab." That he took me from the Congress Hotel to the Santa Fe station by the way of Lincoln Park might have been democratic, but it was not pretty.

Chicago's Boul Mich is rightly one of the most famous streets in the world. Fronting Lake Michigan and its rush of swift winds, it is a promenade that runs the gamut of human interest. Its north and south vehicular traffic ripples with the finest of motor cars. Here one may see Broadway stars enjoying their "Chicago run;" cinema celebrities just in or bound for Hollywood; provocative local ladies with sly, engaging winks; men-about-town; cattlemen in wide Stetsons; dandies from Malshall Field's; dowagers and sidewalk pigeons as tame and friendly as those in St. Mark's.

Prairie avenue, which was in other days a part of the aristocratic Gold Coast, had gone to seed. Fine mansions have become rooming and boarding houses dotted here and there with fortune telling parlors, crystal gazing salons and other mystical abracadabra. Some are in such disrepair they have been completely abandoned, and high weeds clutter lawns once trod by the Armours and Swifts and other of the pioneering great. To me it is the saddest street in the world.

Chicago continues to fling ribbon-like roads out in its lake front, providing a Venetian effect that is striking. Fine mansions are now on the lake edge. The Chicago of the nineties is chiefly a memory.

* * *

A friend clapped me on the shoulder on La Salle street and after an exchange of greetings inquired if I would be here long. I peered around cautiously and told him I hoped so. After all, Chicago is Chicago.

* * *

With a well-washed face and nicely roached hair I would like—being the little gentleman I am—to suggest modestly that Chicago brighten up its street signs. No hurry. Any time they get around to it will do.

Play

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

It is about as important to arrange for proper play in your daily program as for proper work.

Of course work is the principal thing. By work we make a living and work should be given the first place in our interests.

But you can't work well unless you play well. You have to know how to let go in order to know how to take hold.

The season is here when the call of the wild comes to all of us.

The lawyer or banker at his desk in the office building downtown thinks with longing of going fishing in the creek somewhere off in the woods. No matter how luxurious his apartment is or how many conveniences he has there is something, after all, in the simple, natural life out of doors that appeals to man.

You long to get on a flannel shirt and a pair of old trousers and take a rod and line and go out on the lake and in the woods and eat simple fare that you have cooked yourself and sleep in the outdoors.

This is the program that appeals to all of us and puts us in shape for our regular work.

We are animals after all and it does us good once in a while to shun civilization and go back to the simple life. We come back to our problems refreshed and strengthened.

We learn quite as much by play as by work. It is a child's method of learning. He learns by doing and much of the best teaching he gets is through play.

Play, to be valuable, must not be expensive nor elaborate. We don't want to load ourselves down with too many trappings.

Play is as important in later life as it is in youth. A man lives longer and his health is better if he can play well than if he goes every day without play.

We should get into some kind of a game that absorbs us and calls for our attention.

Vacation time is here, and it is a wise man who plans to spend some portion of it out in the open where he can let go of all the cares that infest the soul and throw himself heartily into the business of doing nothing.

We will not only live longer, but we will live larger. We will not only be strengthened, but our lives will be enriched.

Right Angles

By ALEXANDER CAIRNS

Exclusive

THAT word exclusive is a white-winged angel and a black-cloaked devil. As an angel it is the only species of some excellent genus. As a devil it is a starched snob who bangs the door in the face of modest and humble worth.

The exclusiveness which consists in making the best Apollo lyre; or Tara harp, or pipes of Pan, is a commodity precious as the coffers of Croesus.

And one cannot conceive better advertising than the slogan, "The only of the best."

But the exclusive neighborhood, or the exclusive club, or the exclusive store, or the exclusive party, all such talk sounds like a slap in the face.

Read Victor Hugo's oration on Voltaire, delivered on the hundredth anniversary of the great man's death, and you will agree that exclusiveness caused the French Revolution and the little wind, "keep out," reaped the big whirlwind, "let us in," with which destiny wrote the denouement of the reign of terror.

Compared with the noise of that discord, exclusive, how ring-like the chimes of paradise, that harmony, inclusive.

Inclusiveness has the heart of motherhood and the humanity of every national anthem. It shuts out nothing but wolves and serpents. It is prophetic of peace and open hearths and singing tea kettles and the crickets croon and the moan of the outside storm.

When Marie Antoinette barricaded herself and her sister and children behind desks and chairs and suffered the insulting billingsgate of the fish mongers and charwomen of Paris, she was only collecting on her investment in the exclusive royalty of the Tuilleries.

How inclusive have been all the great hearts of the world? Indeed, when one's measure of inclusiveness seems boundless and fathomless and endless we put him in a pantheon and worship him. His shrines decorate the highways and the homes and the hearts everywhere.

Lincoln was inclusive and Nero exclusive. Galilee was inclusive and Rome exclusive. Love is inclusive and hate exclusive.

Albania Turns Back

THERE ought to be no surprise at the rumored decision of Albania to proclaim a monarchy after 10 years' experience as a republic.
